EIGHTH ARMY MAKES NEW LANDING IN ITALY

American Troops Driving Forward In March on Rome

Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army Surges on From Benevento Capturing Important Crossings on the Calore River

MONTGOMERY ADVANCING UP ADRIATIC COAST

By NOLAN NORGAARD

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 4.—(P)—The British Eighth Army, with the support of Allied naval forces which penetrated the Adriatic, have landed and clinched positions at Termoli, on the Adriatic coast almost midway between the Italian heel and the mouth of the river Po in northern Italy, official front-line dispatches announced today.

Simultaneously, United States troops of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army have surged forward from Benevento in their march on Rome from Naples and have captured an important crossing of the Calore river, thereby threatening to turn the flank of any water defense line which the Germans may attempt to hold along the Volturno river.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's advance up the Adriatic coast—along the historic path of conquerors toward the Emilian Way, which leads to the Po valley—likewise threatened to turn the defenses of German Marshals Rommel and Kesselring which may be centered about Rome and the Apennines.

His march was advanced greatly by the capture of the strategic Termoli by surprise, beat off German counter-attacks, took an undisclosed number of prisoners well behind the enemy's rear and then made a junction with the main body of the Eighth Army, which continued to pound up the coast.

Termoli is 50 miles north of Foggia, the airbase city, and approximately 17 miles north of Gen. Montgomery's previous position at the mouth of the Fortore river just north of the "spur" of the Italian boot.

Immediately north of Naples, Fifth Army patrols with strong British armor support, stabbed relentlessly at the retreating Germans and found enemy resistance stiffening, apparently because the Germans were intent upon slowing down Clark's advance long enough to withdraw heavy equipment and supplies across the Volturno.

The Fifth Army's march also was impeded greatly by German demolition parties which were blowing up every bridge, road junction and culvert.

With the Americans across the Calore river and in a position to strike westward in force, the Germans appeared able only to fight a delaying action along the Volturno once Clark's main body reaches that stream.

While Montgomery's amphibious undertaking, a repetition of the tactics that permitted rapid advances along both Sicilian coasts, made spectacular gains, other Eighth Army forces pushed to the northwestern edge of the Foggia plain and occupied the town of Motta, 28 miles northwest of Foggia, a communique announced. The communique did not say when the town was taken.

The communique also announced the occupation of Montemiletto, 11 miles southeast of Benevento, on the flank of the American column which reached and crossed the Calore.

Other towns and villages taken within the Allied line stretching across Italy included Castelfranco, 20 miles northeast of Benevento; Ginestra, also northeast of Benevento; Moncalvo, 16 miles east of Benevento; Mirabella, Melito and Bonito, all east and southeast of Benevento; and Lario, Altavilla and Arpina, south of Benevento.

In the inland push to the west from the Foggia plain the Eighth Army also occupied Roseto, Volturno and Aliperna, all south of Motta, and Pietra and Montecorvino, northeast of Motta.

Rain still falling in the Naples area yesterday impeded Clark's drive beyond the city where essential services and food supplies were being organized quickly by (Turn to Page Seven)

Majority of Senators Favor Collaboration After the War

BY JACK BELL

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—A majority of the senate favors international collaboration after the war, but there are so many different viewpoints that any foreign policy declaration now almost certainly would have to be vague and general in its commitments.

That was the interpretation placed by veteran observers today on the results of an Associated Press poll in which 89 senators were asked if they would support a resolution if it came to a vote in its present form.

Of the 89, a total of 42 said they favor the principle of the measure, which would record congress

Vice Tightens About Enemy On Peninsula

Enemy's Position, MacArthur Says, Is Futile If Not Untenable

SHORELINE IS MENACED

By C. YATES McDANIEL

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Oct. 4.—(P)—Their last important coastal supply base gone and their land flank beset by a column of Australian troops, the Japanese on New Guinea's Huon Peninsula today were squeezed between the mountains and the sea.

The enemy's position, General Douglas MacArthur said in a communique, was futile if not untenable, and the Allies had every reason to believe the entire northeastern New Guinea shoreline as far as Madang was within grasp.

Finishing, the major enemy anchorage and air station on the eastern coast of the Huon Peninsula, fell Saturday to Australia's famed Ninth Division, battle-hardened veterans of Tobruk and El Alamein.

That in itself assured the Allied final control of the Huon Gulf, on which Lae and Salamaua are situated.

But through a simultaneous air and ground advance, pressed persistently up the Markham river from Lae and over the mountains of interior New Guinea to the Ramu river valley on the northwest, the Allies have achieved dominance of the entire peninsula as well.

Enlarging on his commander's statements, Brig. Gen. Charles Willoughby, MacArthur's chief of intelligence, suggested the future reward for operations of this type is limited only by the forces available to execute them.

The northeastern New Guinea campaign, he asserted, "provides the answer to the mechanics of combined operations for the next six to 12 months if we are given the means to carry them out."

Willoughby declined to say whether new Allied undertakings, large scale or small, are in prospect, he declared, however: "We will not stand still."

NEW JOB FOR CO-EDS

Huntingdon, Oct. 4.—(P)—There is a new note on the campus of 67-year-old Juniata College. Co-eds now tug at the ropes of the bell that summons students to classes—another manpower expedient.

as favoring American participation through constitutional processes in "appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and maintain a just and lasting peace among the nations of the world."

Eleven senators opposed the measure in its present form, 36 declined to commit themselves and seven were not reached.

Among the 36 who declined to state "yes" or "no" views were at least 10 who publicly have said they favor some form of international collaboration. If these were added to the 42 who gave qualified or full endorsement of the Fulbright measure, the 52 total would be three more than a majority.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schenholm, of Bradford, shown aboard their 32-foot cabin boat in which they plan to sail down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans and thence to Sarasota, Fla., to visit their son in the USAF. The boat, built by Mr. Schenholm, is shown as the sailors passed through Pittsburgh.

East Liverpool, O., Oct. 4.—(P)—The trip of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schenholm, of Bradford, Pa., down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans and thence to Sarasota, Fla., was resumed yesterday after a weekend stop here for repairs of their 32-foot cabin boat. Generator trouble forced docking of their craft. The Schenholms are making the trip to visit a son in the air force.

Women Over 45 Sought For Positions In War Industries

Further Intensified Recruiting Necessary To Utilize Workers

DRAFT IS CONSIDERED

By JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—Most women over 45 years of age are not in the labor market and do not play as aggressive a role in searching for jobs as do younger women. The census bureau points out, too, that home responsibilities for women are often lighter after 45.

When the word unemployment is used now, it does not mean some group of idle people steadily without jobs. It means only that a certain number of people at a certain time are without jobs.

Yet the unemployment figure may remain fairly constant and in this way: Say the number of unemployed in a given month was one million also one million the next month.

That doesn't mean the same one million persons remained unemployed during the period.

For in that period maybe 500,000 persons from the first month's million had found jobs and moved out of the unemployed ranks, while another 500,000 persons lost jobs and moved into the unemployed ranks.

Right now less than half the people seeking work one month are unemployed the next month. But the unemployment of that small residue group, with industry crying for workers, is important.

Problems Of Publishers Are Discussed

Harrisburg, Oct. 4.—(P)—The Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association, meeting today to discuss wartime problems, assured readers they will still get the news even if the press has to ration advertising space because of the newspaper shortage.

Manager William N. Hardy said he believed all publishers "are of the opinion they must maintain service to the readers and keep up the news."

Advertising men opened the two-day PNPA conference with the prospects of space rationing as a major topic. Eastern and central Pennsylvania publishers join tomorrow in the sessions held in connection with national newspaper week observance.

Hardy said if Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board is right on predictions of drastic cuts in newspaper supplies, "there certainly will have to be rationing of advertising and everything else."

The PNPA official noted that (Turn to Page Two)

FRANKFURT IS VISITED BY FORTRESSES

Americans Supported By Long-Range Thunderbolts, Sweep Into Germany Attacking Many Targets

MINES ARE ALSO LAID

London, Oct. 4.—(P)—American Flying Fortresses, supported by long-range Thunderbolts, swept into Germany today and attacked targets in Frankfurt, which is 91 miles southwest of Kassel where RAF heavy bombers struck last night, it was announced today.

The air ministry also said that British Mosquitos bombed Hannover and targets in the Rhineland last night. Other bombers laid mines in enemy waters.

A British communique described the Kassel attack as "very heavy" and said preliminary reports indicated "that heavy damage was done to the important industrial target." The weather was described as excellent.

The RAF's night operations, including the Kassel raid, cost 24 bombers.

Frankfurt, with a population of more than half a million, is a big inland port on the main river, a railway center, and the site of large oil refineries, chemical plants, and other factories.

It was the 37th raid of the war on that city. It has been untouched by air assault, however, since last December.

Today's daylight raid by the big American bombers on their long-range escorts was the first precision attack on the war on Frankfurt.

The twin blows followed the now-familiar Allied strategy of (Turn to Page Seven)

FOUR KILLED IN AIR TRAGEDY AT MEADVILLE

Meadville, Oct. 4.—(P)—Two instructors and two students from Allegheny College were killed today when their two planes collided, crashed and burned about a mile and a half east of Meadville.

Witnesses said the two ships met head-on about 1,000 feet in the air. One of the occupants jumped out, but his parachute failed to open. The bodies of the other three were burned badly.

Names of the victims were not immediately released by army authorities.

Defense Rests In Waynesburg Trial

Waynesburg, Oct. 4.—(P)—The defense rested today shortly after noon. Nancy Jeannette Holt, on trial charged with the poison murder of her husband, Jesse, broke into sobs and cried while describing the deathbed scene.

The 29-year-old blonde widow told of taking Holt to work on the morning of May 27 and of his returning about 11 a. m., saying he had a "chill" on the job.

"The task would have been easier with more planes; it could not have been done with less," General Arnold credited the U. S. and British air forces for saving Allied troops from annihilation at the Salerno bridgehead in Italy in calling last night for greater and greater bomber production.

Counterfeiter Of Rationing Cards Sought

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—(P)—Federal agents spread a dragnet today for the operator of a Philadelphia printing plant, following a raid in which counterfeit gasoline ration coupons worth more than 10,000,000 gallons were seized.

A tip from a gasoline dealer, approached as a possible customer, and subsequent detective work led U. S. marshals and Office of Price Administration agents to the two-room headquarters of the Hill Printing Service yesterday.

There, Myron M. Coffey, chief OPA investigator said, they found stacks of counterfeit coupons of all types, along with plates and dies and two presses, one nearly new. Coffey estimated that the plant could have turned out coupons worth 100,000,000 gallons of gasoline in its four months of existence.

A warrant charging illegal manufacture, possession and transfer of federal ration currency was sworn out for Dennis A. Hill, 39, identified by Coffey as the owner (Turn to Page Two)

$10,600,000,000 In Added Taxes Is Morgenthau Plan To Curb Inflation and Win War

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—Secretary Morgenthau asked congress today to provide an additional $10,500,000,000 a year in wartime taxes, taking $6,500,000,000 of this huge sum from individual incomes.

Repeal of the victory tax, which Morgenthau said would "relieve 9,000,000 hard-pressed families from tax on their incomes," was included in an administration program which embraced also big increases in corporation and excise taxes.

With President Roosevelt's approval, the treasury secretary presented to the house ways and means committee the tax plan designed to boost annual federal revenues to nearly $50,000,000,000—approximately one-third the national income.

Morgenthau said income payments to individuals in the current fiscal year were estimated at $152,000,000,000, with only about $89,000,000,000 worth of goods and services available. Of the remaining $63,000,000,000 he said personal taxes would take $21,000,000,000 at present rates, leaving about $42,000,000,000 of "excess spending money."

A large portion of any new revenues probably will come from added levies on "luxuries."

The administration, as explained to members of the house ways and means and senate finance committees, wants the excise on liquor raised from $6 to $10 a gallon. One lawmaker estimated the $10 figure would mean one the basis of 80 drinks to a gallon—that one jigger would carry a tax of 12½ cents.

The members outlined the tentative administration programs as follows:

Individual incomes: A jump in rates to produce an additional $6,610,000,000 annually, which might mean an increase in the withholding levy on taxable portions of wages and salaries, from 20 to 30 per cent for some income groups.

However, a portion of the increase would embody a compulsory savings plan under which $3,560,000,000 of the $6,610,000,000 would be refunded to individual taxpayers after the war.

Exemptions from married men, in the tax computations, would be lowered from $1,200 to $1,100 for single persons it would remain at $500, and dependents' exemptions would be reduced from $350 to $200. The victory tax would be absorbed in the income tax increases.

Corporation incomes—A rate jump from 40 to 50 per cent.

Excises: Distilled spirits—From $6 to $10 a gallon; Beer—$7 to $10 a barrel; (Turn to Page Seven)

CHURCHMAN OF NOTE IN ERIE PASSES AWAY

Erie, Oct. 4.—(P)—William Stewart McCormick, prominent in church, Masonic and Odd Fellows circles, died suddenly at his home yesterday of a heart attack.

Born in St. Petersburg, Pa., near Oil City, he lived in Erie for more than 32 years, and was associated with the Pittsburgh and Erie Coal Company.

Planes Play Vital Role In Invasions

Seattle, Oct. 4.—(P)—Every plane the Allies could get off Mediterranean soil was thrown into the invasion of Italy, and yet it very nearly wasn't enough, says Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the U. S. Army Air Force.

The invasion would not have been possible with fewer planes, he said last night, "as a matter of fact, we had to gather these planes together from every source possible—from our training centers, from depots, from modification centers—to do the trick."

"The task would have been easier with more planes; it could not have been done with less."

General Arnold credited the U. S. and British air forces for saving Allied troops from annihilation at the Salerno bridgehead in Italy in calling last night for greater and greater bomber production.

Facts Regarding United War Fund Drive To Be Publicized

"How can I find out briefly the facts regarding the Warren County United War Fund campaign?"

This is the question being asked by many Warren men, heads of stores and factories, executives, and working men. What they want, as this tremendous drive gathers momentum, is a brief boiled-down statement of the purpose of the campaign, the amount to be raised, the distribution of the funds, and an idea of the proper amount for each individual to give. To such questions as these an answer may be found, according to Edward W. Johnson, chairman of the campaign, in a radio broadcast Tuesday evening, October 5, at 10:30 p. m. EST. Mr. Johnson suggests that Warren

Fort Pitt Area Highly Praised By Secretary

Pittsburgh, Oct. 4.—(P)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., wired his personal congratulations yesterday to Robert H. McClintic, vice chairman of the War Finance Committee and Third War Loan campaign chairman in the Fort Pitt area, for the state's record in passing its war bond sales quota.

"Pennsylvania has done a splendid job in going over the top by $28,000,000 in the Third War Loan drive, and I wish to extend to you and your associates heartfelt congratulations for this outstanding accomplishment," Morgenthau telegraphed.

Final tally of the 19-county Fort Pitt area returns will be completed late today, McClintic said. The last figures showed it topped its $305,898,900 quota by $28,497,100.

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau said today every state in the union apparently oversubscribed its quota in the $15,000,000,000 Third War Loan just closed.

Individual purchases, primary goal of the drive, exceeded the ceiling set for them, he said. The war loan total today stood close to $17,000,000,000.

BIRTH RECALLS CASE AGAINST PANTOMINIST

Hollywood, Oct. 4.—(P)—"Doing splendidly" was the hospital report today concerning Joan Berry, 24, and the baby daughter whose father she alleges to be Film Comedian Charles Chaplin.

The 6-pound 5-ounce infant, named Carol Ann, was born at 10:30 p. m. Saturday.

The child is being kept in a small private nursery, with the key entrusted to one nurse on each shift, at the request of the mother's attorney, John J. Irwin.

The baby's footprints were impressed on several legal documents soon after birth. Four months from now blood tests will be made in an attempt to establish whether the 54-year-old English pantomimist is the father.

GERMANS ARE FLEEING OVER KERCH STRAIT

Nazis Threatened With Loss of Last Tenuous Foothold in Caucasus as Reds Drive Them Onto Peninsula

TROOPSHIPS ARE SUNK

London, Oct. 4.—(P)—German troops were threatened with the loss of their last tenuous foothold in the Caucasus today as the Red Army drove them back from Staro-Tamanskaya on the Taman peninsula, while on the upper Dnieper river the Nazis fought furiously to block a Russian flanking movement aimed at Mogilev.

The announcement of the fall of Staro-Tamanskaya was made by the Berlin radio, and the full extent of the German collapse in the Caucasus was indicated in a Russian communique last night which told of the sinking of a number of troop-laden ships which apparently were attempting to evacuate the remnants of the shattered German army across the narrow Kerch Strait to the Crimea.

On the central front, Moscow said, more than 2,000 Nazis were killed as the Russians stormed across the Pronya river, 28 miles east of Mogilev, to occupy 70 villages in a maneuver which threatened to turn the German flank in that sector.

The Soviet ground forces were supported by Red army airmen, who pounded both Mogilev and Orsha, an important junction town 50 miles to the north.

South of Mogilev the Russian columns advancing on Gomel found their assaults slowed up by the Germans, who launched numerous counter attacks all of which the Russian communique said were repulsed with German losses of more than 1,200. The Russians advanced from 3 to 5 miles and captured 20 villages.

The Russians were apparently (Turn to Page Seven)

Vital Questions Awaiting Decision

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—The supreme court reassembles for its 1943-44 term today with legal controversies of far-reaching import awaiting settlement.

The eight-month session is expected to produce rulings on the application of the draft act to conscientious objectors, the constitutionality of OPA rent control regulations, and the right of a Negro to vote in a state primary which nominates candidates for congress.

These controversies are among the 400 cases already on file, and more are arriving daily. Those now pending accumulated during the previous recess that began last June 21.

The court's personnel is the same as it has been since last Feb. 15, when Wiley Rutledge succeeded Justice James F. Byrnes, who resigned in October to become economic stabilization director.

The program for today's session consists only of the admission of attorneys and the receipt of motions. The customary call at the White House will be made later.

A. F. of L. Opens Annual Convention

Boston, Oct. 4.—(P)—The American Federation of Labor opens its 63rd annual convention today with major attention likely to be divided among such items as the application of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers for restoration of its charter, the manpower problem, post-war planning, politics, prices and wages.

Between 500 and 600 delegates were on hand to hear the keynote address of President William Green and, later in the day, a speech by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

Coppers Engaged In Chase For Lively Pig Sunday

Everything is grist that comes to the coppers' mill and on Sunday they got a call from the United Refinery to come out there and capture a 20-pound young pig. Nothing daunted, Patrolmen Parks and Gaghan sallied forth to catch the chops on the hoof. They found the pig sheltered from the stiff breezes beside a fence. Parks, who has had experience with razor backs in Virginia and others of the porcine clan, essayed the capture. With a piece of bread and persuasive manner he approached the piggie. When almost ready to lay hands on it the pig bolted. If it had been a razor back Parkie would have been sliced in two as the pig dashed between his legs. Then followed a wild chase. Em-

Physician At Tionesta Takes His Own Life

Tionesta, Oct. 4.—Dr. Lester Eugene Siemon, aged 75, a Cleveland physician, ended his life about noon Sunday by shooting himself through the head with a .38 calibre revolver. He was alone at the time in the cottage of his son-in-law, Melvin E. Greene, located about a half mile south of town along the river.

The man was sitting in a chair when found not long after the shooting. He was clad in pajamas and a bathrobe, which he wore much of the time when around his own cottage nearby.

Dr. and Mrs. Siemon, a granddaughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Greene and daughter gathered after the shooting. Dr. Siemon when he left the home to go to the Greene cottage and one of the family went there for him when it was time to serve the dinner.

Sheriff Bruce Haggerty and Deputy Sheriff D. H. Blum were notified and after investigating decided it was a case of suicide and an inquest was not necessary. Dr. Siemon left a note stating he was ill and did not care to be a burden on anyone. He named a Cleveland undertaker to take care of the body, which he requested should be cremated.

The body was taken to the Haslet funeral home and late this evening will be taken to Cleveland.

Dr. Siemon came to this community several years ago and created the cottage along the river. With his wife, he came to the cottage early in the summer. He made many friends here who were shocked to learn of his tragic death. He spent most of his life in Cleveland and was a member of the staff of the Cleveland City hospital.

Hubert B. Cousins died at four o'clock this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Howard Norris, 301 West street. He was born here 76 years ago on September 11, a son of the late Irvine and Emily Cousins. Well known carpenter for many years, he had more recently been retired.

Besides Mrs. Norris, he leaves a daughter, Mrs. Alvin Evans, of El Paso, Texas; two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Cobb, of Cleveland, O.; and Mrs. Ralph Frizzell, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; also four grandchildren. One brother, Ralph, preceded him in death.

Funeral services will be held at four o'clock Thursday afternoon from the Lutz Funeral Home, where friends may call at any time. Rev. Wayne Furman, First Methodist minister, will officiate and interment will be made in Oakland cemetery.

(From Page One)
The man who attempted to sell the coupons to the gasoline dealer was followed to a telephone booth in which stamps worth 37,000 gallons were found after he left. The trail led to another suspect, and a search of his home uncovered counterfeiters worth 500,000 gallons, along with the cards of eight printing concerns.

Death and Destruction Lurk Behind Home Fire Hazards

Methodist Leaders To Gather Here In Meet This Week

Gasoline, benzene and naphtha NEVER should be used for home dry cleaning or even kept in the house. A pint of gasoline equals a pound of dynamite in power.

Accumulated rubbish in basements, attics or closets both breeds fire and feeds it. Don't allow rubbish of any kind to pile up in your house.

Blazing embers from one blazing home set fire to the inflammable roof of a neighbor's house. Such roofs are the third largest cause of home fires. When re-roofing is necessary, cover the old roof with a fire-retardant material such as asphalt shingles.

A burned child may not play with fire twice—the first time may cost him his life. Matches should be kept in fire-proof containers beyond the reach of small children. Be sure to use safety matches and take care to see that they are fully extinguished.

Many a home has gone up in flames because a housewife left an electric iron connected while she went off to chat with a neighbor or do an errand. Disconnect electric devices after use.

Fire licks out of furnace flue pipes. Stoves, furnaces, flues and chimneys should be cleaned before the beginning of each heating season. Have them repaired if any defects are discovered.

Thousands of Americans are unwitting arsonists. They are the folk who, through sheer carelessness, caused more homes to be destroyed or severely damaged by fire in 1942 than the nation was able to build. And the tragedy of it is that there were NO NEW REASONS for the 1942 fire loss. Just the same old household fire hazards. The most common of them are pictured above. Scout through your home and see how many are there, threatening your property and the lives of yourself and your family.

Moose Party At Corry Was Successful

Saturday evening the Warren Lodge of Moose staged a dinner-dance in the Hotel Corry for the members of the lodge who reside in Corry and vicinity. The officers of the Warren Lodge attended with other guests. Dinner was served at 7 and following the dinner, Gust Sandstrom presided as toastmaster and introduced the officers of the Warren Lodge and Clara A. Berger, who gave a talk on the Moose order and of the charities and patriotic work done by the order.

Following the program, a three-act floor show was given and this was especially pleasing as the acts had been carefully selected. Dancing was then enjoyed in the ball room of the Hotel and a good orchestra provided the music.

Clarendon Boy In Sicily On Surrender

Mr. and Mrs. Marcy Bedez, 108 Railroad street, Clarendon, have had an interesting letter from their son, Cpl. Edmund J. Bedez, who is somewhere in Sicily and writes of the surrender of Italy. He says in part:

"I just got through eating supper and have a little time before it gets dark to drop you a few lines. We can't do much writing in the evenings because it gets dark early and we are not allowed to have any lights. Today for supper we had some ice cream and it sure was delicious."

"It was a sort of celebration in honor of the Allied victory in the surrender of Italy. The people here sure are happy about it. They really demonstrated their happiness last night when we rode through Palermo and other towns on our way back to camp from seeing and hearing Al Jolson, who gave a wonderful performance."

"On our way back all streets were lined on both sides with people, from the youngest to the oldest, men and women alike, shouting, cheering and waving frantically to us in their happiness over the surrender of Italy. The women were crying and throwing kisses at us. We didn't know what it was all about until we reached our bivouac area. I never in all my life saw such a demonstration and it was something I shall never forget. It made me feel good to see someone appreciate what we are doing."

"I really feel sorry for some of these people. They actually have nothing. Their clothing is patched over and over and for shoes they wrap anything on their feet. It sure is a pitiful sight in some cases, especially among the older people. No one seems to care about them. Some of them look worse than the skeletons I saw in the catacombs. Thank heavens, we don't have such poverty and squalor in the States. This is what Mussolini did for them."

"We rode through Palermo by way of the water front yesterday and I never saw such utter devastation as was caused by bombings. Building after building is in ruins. The whole city got it but it is worse around the docks. There is no question about the power of the Allies any more."

RACIAL DISCRIMINATION

Twenty-two railroads and 15 labor unions are on trial before the President's new Committee on Fair Employment Practices on charges that they discriminate against Negroes.

The Southern Railroad, operating in the southeast, states the problem clearly and realistically in its reply brief. It has never employed a Negro locomotive engineer because that would have been "bitterly resented" by its clientele.

The fact is as the railroad states. "Such problems," the railroad's joint reply remarks, "cannot be solved overnight by a stroke of the pen." Nor can the railroads, which must earn money in order to survive, be expected to defy the sentiment of the areas in which they operate. The long-run approach must be through education, social evolution, civic reform.

AN EXTRA SHOE STAMP FOR JUNIOR

"Little Eva will not go barefooted in the snow for want of a shoe ration stamp. The OPA points out that getting a special shoe stamp is very simple," says one of our special Washington correspondents. She explains it this way:

You can get the form from your local ration board, by mail if you wish. The applicant must have no more than one pair of shoes in wearable or repairable condition. The shoes requested must be for occupational or general wear, not merely for keeping up appearances. Children who have outgrown their shoes will thus be eligible for shoes for general wear, but not for party shoes. In order for anyone to be eligible for a special shoe stamp, all stamps in possession of anyone in his family group must have been spent.

THE BUTTER PROBLEM

A step toward saving more cream for butter has been made by the War Food Administration in an amended food order. Heavy cream has been getting away, through the practice of adding a stabilizer and putting it on the market under a brand-name. So you won't see any more of those packages of whipped cream.

There has been a good deal of clamor to get WFA to decrease its take of butter for the armed services in order to increase the civilian supply. WFA points out that although it plans to decrease buying for the armed services, this will not create a splurge of butter on the civilian market. The peak season of butter production is over and is now declining sharply. Hence the four-point rise.

PEARL HARBOR TRIALS

Apparently the Articles of War do not follow common law. If Admiral Kimmel and Major-General Short are not "arraigned" by Dec. 7, 1943, they cannot be tried for their alleged failings in connection with the disaster at Pearl Harbor.

But this still does not call for immediate public trial in which war secrets might be spread around and ammunition given to hecklers of the administration. There are at least two other possibilities. One is a trial now, in camera, which would be made public in full after the war. The other, which seems preferable, is to "arraign" the brass hats at once and then recess the trial until it can be held openly.

The Warren County United War Fund campaign is coming up. Here's another activity that should receive the unanimous support of every citizen.

Mussolini has decided to set up his new Italian government in Germany. That's one way for the Duce to be assured of a longer life.

Lot of folks wouldn't complain so much about raising the point value of butter, if they could only find some to purchase.

Major Hoople didn't do so bad in his guess on the Dragon-Oil City game at Russell Field last Saturday.

The Third War Loan went over the top and as usual Warren county came through with flying colors.

Foliage on the hills of Warren county was never more beautiful than it is right at the present time.

The Canadian Price Board has lifted the ban on two-pants suits. It's still a pressing problem in this country.

Sing a Song of Six-Pants

I'VE GOT SIX PANTS - HOLEY HOLEY SIX PANTS -

Washington in Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — You may remember stories about American soldiers teaching German kids to play baseball during days of occupation right after World War I. Here are a couple of stories that show that the dough-boys along with the youngsters of occupied territory today just as well as he ever did.

Both these stories, which have just drifted back from Sicily, are about mascots, both called Johnny.

The first one's real name is Giovanni. He's a 12-year-old Sicilian whose mother was killed in an air raid and whose father isn't been heard from since he went off to the Russian front.

JOHNNY wandered into the bivouac of an armored division medical battalion after that historic end-run to Palermo. At first he just sat on the stubble of a wheat field and sang solemnly to himself. Soon the soldiers began to talk and joke with him and to share their C rations. Johnny moved in as mascot.

Now he goes about with his civilian clothes rounded out with a pair of GI shoes and a GI cap. He wears the medical battalion's Red Cross armband and — most proudly of all — the division's patch sewed in his sweater. His salute is famous and he clicks his heels like the general's snappiest aide.

Johnny is most famous for his voice. His repertoire includes Italian translations of "Oh, Johnny," "The Butcher Boy," "The Woodpecker Song" and an unprintable number about Mussolini.

The most touching display of Johnny's witfulness to be one of the gang came on the first day after he "joined up." As the men lined up, he shyly handed the company commander, Capt. R. M. Pruyn of Yonkers, N. Y., an envelope containing a few lira he had earned around camp. Then he got into line and received his money all over again.

THE other "Johnny's" real name is Abdul or Mohammed Ali or something. Nobody remembers any more. An artillery brigade picked him up at Sidi Bel Abbes, Morocco, and he has served as an interpreter with the ninth division in Sicily. He's now attached as a "one-man army" to the headquarters of the military command of the Palermo district. He's a 10-year-old Arab replete with side arms and half-pint regulation uniform.

When this Johnny first reported to headquarters he was wearing an empty pistol holster. The commanding officer gave him a .32 of his own. As he left he received his own gun from a nearby piano, where he had hidden it "so the colonel wouldn't take it away." He trusts his new friends more now.

One of Johnny's duties is to play some ancient American records, which came from heaven known here, on a decrepit phonograph in the officers' mess.

Johnny's most remarkable feat was the single-handed capture of a civilian who had cornered quantities of bread and was running a black market.

Hollywood Gossip

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — The handsomest man in pictures, a chap who once made $2,500 a week and then learned what it was to be hungry, is making a comeback. But he's not the same old Neil Hamilton.

In looks, yes, he's about the same; still handsome, still paunchless and athletic, he says cheerfully that he has just turned 44 and has never been happier in his life. Not only about the comeback, for which David O. Selznick has signed him for seven years, but about the "bigger thing" of which he considers the comeback a part. He'll play in "Since You Went Away."

"It's all a demonstration," he says with fervor, "of the power of prayer."

And this is his story:

NEIL HAMILTON, who got into pictures in 1925 and made a hit in "Beau Geste," soon got to thinking that Neil Hamilton was pretty big stuff. His salary went up and up, he had two houses and a boat and all that money could buy.

"So I forgot about God and became a law unto myself," he says. "I was a great fellow, didn't need help from anywhere."

In 1935 he went to England for two years to make pictures. When he came back, a lot of people remembered him — as a has-been. He finally got a deal for four pictures at $1,750 a week, and then drew another long enforced vacation. After this he was glad to play in a serial, at $350 a week — the former romantic hero playing a Nazi spy. He was beginning really to worry.

Then he got a proposition to share in a Hollywood show at the San Francisco world's fair. His share was the loss of all his savings, all his wife Elsa's jewels, and a debt of $28,000.

IT WAS his daughter Patricia, now 12, who really accounted for his "return to God." One Sunday it struck him that she might wonder why she should go to church while her dad slept Sunday mornings. That Sunday he didn't sleep. At church that day, he says, he became a new man.

He had new hope, but still no work. There were days when the Hamiltons weren't sure of their next meal.

"I had faith, and the more I read of my religion the stronger my faith became," he says. "If my faith was strong, Elsa's was stronger. I got down on my knees and prayed. One morning while shaving I heard a voice. Call it imagination if you will, but to me it was a voice. It told me to go see Dan Kelly, the casting director at Universal. Elsa said, Why not?"

"The last time I'd seen Dan I'd been pretty nasty, feeling my oats as a big shot. I apologized, and he said to forget it. He sent me over to Bernard Burton, the producer, and Burton had a job for me in 'All by Myself.' For $650 a week. He said he'd been looking through all the casting directories to fill this role, and why wasn't I in them? I hadn't the $15 it takes to be in."

Meat Marketing Still Looks Pretty Black To the O.P.A.

MAKE THIS PLEDGE:

I pay no more than top legal prices
I accept no rationed goods
without giving up ration stamps

To create a better understanding of the great importance of consumer and retail compliance with rationing and price ceilings, a nation-wide Home Front Pledge campaign has been launched. Reproduced above is a poster for the drive.

BY JAMES THRASHER
NEA Staff Correspondent
Washington, Oct. 4.—The black market in meat is still a flourishing and prosperous business, in case anyone is entertaining optimistic notions to the contrary. And a consensus of authorities in Washington puts the biggest share of blame on the collusion that goes on across the counters of thousands of America's butcher shops. During the past six months the government has taken some effective steps toward black market control. The Department of Agriculture's system of slaughter permits almost wiped out the wasteful and unsanitary practice of "country slaughtering." The Office of Price Administration has improved civilian supplies by setting aside the "set-aside" order which earmarked a percentage of each large packer's produce for government purchase. And though point rationing and dollar-and-cents ceilings, OPA has made ignorance a woefully poor excuse for the black-market patron or operator.

But it doesn't do much good for OPA and Agriculture to throw the book at the black-marketeer if he is able to hide behind the housewives' skirt. And that is about what has happened. OPA enforcement officials have a whole catalogue of willful dodges by which consumers with a meat-at-any-price attitude are supplementing their legal share.

Everybody knows the most common of these practices: There is a grace period after consumers' ration coupons have expired before retailers must turn them in. So many butchers are building up a reserve of unused, expired coupons which are either solicited or given voluntarily by regular customers. Then, when these point-shy old customers want to splurge at a later date, the butcher can slip them a nice steak or roast, ration free.

Besides this familiar dodge, there are other more individual and resourceful methods of getting more than a fair share. One New York woman, for instance, managed to collect a main course by touring the neighborhood delicatessen stores, asking for a roast beef sandwich to take out—"without any bread, please"—and of course, giving up no coupons.

Many consumers today do not care particularly how much money they spend, just so they don't have to give up any points. And there isn't much that OPA can do about it, especially since the agency has to fight this war-born evil while wearing several pairs of handcuffs.

One handicap is the fact that

Congress has forbidden OPA enforcement officers to make purchases for evidence. When an officer receives a tip that a shop is selling rationed meat without collecting points, all he can do is stand around the store with his hands in his pockets, and watch. This makes him about as inconspicuous as a totem pole, and not much more effective.

"If we could make buys," one enforcement official says, "we could increase our efficiency 50 per cent."

There are two more shackles that OPA can't do much about. One is the tremendous consumer demand. The other is the lack of a ceiling price on live beef animals.

But it is no secret that livestock men like this arrangement, and that they are fighting ceilings. And Agriculture, which would have to concur in any livestock ceiling move, isn't opposing them very strongly.

OPA would be considerably happier if it could increase its present staff of 200 covering meat violations. These investigators can get around regularly to the big packers, but it is impossible for them to do much about the country's 185,000 retail meat stores.

In spite of handicaps, however, OPA has managed to make it hot for a lot of price and ration violators. Approximately 1000 packers, wholesalers and retailers have been prosecuted under the second War Power Act, with convictions in more than 300 cases. That doesn't count the growing number of consumers who have had their ration books taken up, for varying periods, after conviction of buying meat without spending coupons.

Investigation isn't easy, because transactions now have an outward appearance of legality. You hear no more stories of truck-riding rustlers or old prohibition mobs in the meatlegging racket. (Most of them weren't true, anyway.) Black-marketing is now slick and sophisticated. Tightening controls have forced out most of the get-rich-quick racketeers. The black market today is largely in the hands of men who have been in

May Rowland Is Written Up In Shop Paper

Under the caption "Something New Has Been Added," the Aero-Gram published by the Aero Supply Company in Corry tells of a new service which will be of particular interest to many in this section. It deals with the work of a full-time visiting nurse and welfare worker, May N. Rowland, R. N., of Youngsville, who, in the course of her duties for the company, has had occasion to visit many Warren county homes.

The Aero-Gram article calls attention to the fact that "already her black coupe is becoming a familiar sight as it makes its daily stops throughout the community. Miss Rowland will call on all those not reporting for work, to learn the cause and see if any assistance is needed by the employees to enable them to return to their post on the production front. We know that all Aero employees will be glad to cooperate with Miss Rowland for she is making her calls to be of service and to render assistance and advice where it is needed. We welcome Miss Rowland into the Aero family and hope that she will like us."

"Incidentally, we would suggest that if you report in sick, you had better be sick, for Miss Rowland will certainly appear at your door to see if you are getting all the attention you need. Being a registered nurse, she will be able to distinguish between a morning-after feeling and a genuine illness. Needless to say, a word to the wise should be sufficient."

Warren Man Given Praise By Superior

Mrs. George C. Hinton, 20 Elm street, has received the following self-explanatory communication from Captain Woodrow H. Barnes, commanding officer of the 17th Field Artillery overseas:

"I would like to take this opportunity of telling you how much I appreciate the excellent work your son Corporal George F. Hinton, has done since becoming a member of this Battery. He has cheerfully performed whatever task has been assigned him and while at times his duty hours have been long and arduous, he has never complained. I am sincerely proud to have him as a member of this Battery."

"We do everything we possibly can for the boys over here in an effort to keep them well and happy. We try to provide magazines and other reading matter and when the situation permits we have swimming and recreation trips. It has been my observation, however, that the letters from home do more to keep the boys in high spirits than anything we can do."

"Again I wish to say that I am happy to have men like your son, Cpl. Hinton, in my battery, and I am sure that you are proud to have a son who is giving his best to his country."

Enforcement officers are grateful for the occasional help of a co-operative retailer or consumer, and they are encouraged by the growing public resentment against black-market patronage.

The agency is hopeful that the pending addition of price panels to existing food ration boards will ease the difficulty. These volunteer helpers could check complaints informally, and weed out cases of misunderstood regulations and minor or inadvertent violations.

But OPA doesn't hesitate to say that butchers and customers alike will have to start showing more good sense and patriotism than they have to date before the black market can be licked.

In the Wake of MURDER

By ADELINE McELFRESH

Chapter 14

BREAKFAST at nine o'clock seemed a long way off when Jane awoke at 7:30. She turned over, determined to go back to sleep. The curtains were blowing in the stiff wind. The pine trees were swaying majestically, their mighty boughs waving to the soothing clouds.

Finally, deciding sleep was not for her, she dressed and went downstairs.

"Good morning," Jane went into the living room and held a match to the kindling and logs that had been stacked in the fireplace. The tiny flame grew, eating its way higher and higher until it crackled cheerfully up the chimney. Pulling a chair closer, Jane extended her hands to the heartening warmth.

Ella Black came downstairs shortly before nine o'clock, looking fresh as a daisy. No trace at all of last night, either in her eyes or her manner. Nor was there any hint of their quarrel when her husband came down a few minutes later.

Breakfast was a cheerful meal. Aunt Ella chattered like a magpie, playing Jane with questions until the girl began to suspect that something was behind it. Uncle Ed devoted his attention to the morning paper.

He finished the paper, along with his coffee, and folded it neatly beside his plate.

"Jane," he said, speaking to her for the first time since he had called a gay "good morning" from the stairs, "will you come into the library? I want to talk to you."

JANE's eyes flew to Aunt Ella, who was shaking her head. She pushed back her chair.

"Ed," Aunt Ella said then, "I don't think you should. It . . . it isn't right."

"Now, Ella," there was something of last night in his tone, "she has got to know."

He got up and stalked into the library. Jane following. Aunt Ella drank the rest of her coffee before she, too, went in.

Jane watched her uncle seat himself at his desk. For all the world like a judge, she thought. He waited until his wife came in and closed the door.

"Jane," his voice was tender, "I wish I didn't have to tell you, but . . . well, it will be easier if you hear it from me."

He paused. Hear what? Jane wondered. Her uncle was rubbing his jaw thoughtfully, perhaps searching for the proper words.

"Brad Forrester is not a government agent."

Jane jumped at the bluntness of his statement. Brad not a Secret Service man? I don't believe it, her heart cried out.

"What is he then?" Her voice sounded harsh to her own ears.

Ed Black shrugged. "You guess," he said. "The real agent contacted me last night, Jane. That's why I was called back to the office. He said his credentials were stolen after he had been beaten up and left for dead."

"I don't believe it."

"Neither did I, at first. But, Jane, Collins has all the proper identification, even a letter of introduction from the head of his department." He shook his head.

"It's true, all right, Jane."

Jane's heart felt dead within her. She looked from Uncle Ed to Aunt Ella and back again.

"What are you going to do?" she asked, dreading the answer.

"Nothing," Ed Black's words came like a reprieve. "Not a thing—until we find out what he's up to."

Oh, God, Jane prayed, don't let it be true.

"Poor dear," Mrs. Black came to her then. "He—Jane, he must be a spy."

Spy. Hearing the word made it worse than ever. Jane turned away. She didn't want them to see the pain in her eyes.

THAT afternoon Jane accompanied her aunt to the church where Chester Billingsley's funeral was to be held. Ed and Brad met them there, having come directly from the Chronicle office.

"You must, child," Aunt Ella had said when she protested. "We can't let him suspect anything."

She was sitting between Brad and her uncle. It was the pressure of Brad's shoulder brushing hers occasionally that kept her mind in a turmoil, she realized, and was angry at herself for the admission.

I hate you, Brad Forrester. How could you pretend as you have? As you are pretending now? For all I know, you killed Chester Billingsley yourself, despite all your talk of being his friend. She bit back a sob.

Uncle Ed was watching her. So was Aunt Ella. But Brad seemed unconscious of her presence. His eyes were glued to the minister's placid face as though he were hanging onto the drained words.

How can you, Brad? Jane felt like screaming.

She stole a glance at Evelyn Billingsley, who was staring at the coffin. Her eyes were dry and feverish, as they had been when she came in, scolding the assistance of her brother, who hovered at her elbow. But there was a taunting smile about her that seemed ready to crack at any moment. Jane felt like taking her into her arms like a hurt child.

Brad glanced down at her then, but she looked straight ahead. She couldn't meet his gaze; he might read the truth in her eyes.

The sermon was over finally and row after row of friends filed to the front of the church to pay their final tribute. Brad stepped aside for Jane to precede him. His hand on her elbow in that moment was almost too much. She kept close to the plump Mrs. Raymond so it wouldn't happen again.

ONE fleeting glance and Chester Billingsley was gone forever from her sight. Jane felt a sob struggling in her throat. She was thankful for the cold December air that met her at the door.

Brad, Uncle Ed and Aunt Ella paused beside her. Between sniffles, Aunt Ella said something about "the beautiful service."

Jane nodded. She had no idea what her aunt had said. All her attention was directed at the man leaning against a car. It was Brad, the man who had searched her purse for that letter!

"I'll meet you later," Brad murmured, slipping through the crowd.

Jane felt sick. It was quite likely true, then, what Uncle Ed had said. Brad was meeting Brad. That was proof of his guilt.

Oil City Falls Victim To Warren Dragons 29 to 6

Blue and White Scores 22 Points in First Half In Whitewashing

The Warren Dragons provided a fitting send-off for their star quarterback, Gusti Arrigo, Saturday, by turning the mighty tide of Blue and White from Oil City back, 29 to 6, in one of the biggest district upsets of the day.

Not once during the tilt did the Dragons offensive fall back and they repeatedly drove through the Oilers forward wall for a run-up of 12 first downs to their 7, and the enemy racked up 5 of theirs in the last half mostly against Warren's second strings.

The locals started their relentless drive when the flipped coin gave them the receiving end. Vesling tested their running attack by kicking from his 45 into Oiler territory on the 35. After three plays with Diehl and Weaver of Oil City lugging to the 41, Diehl's punt was taken by Arrigo on the 12 and raced back to the 21 before getting downed.

The Blue and White charges of J. B. Leidig ripped the Connors wide open on the next twelve plays, pacing their attack through the 1/2 yard stripe, with Gusti Arrigo, Jim Snyder, Vesling and Carlson sharing the ball toting, and Jim Snyder holding the biggest share of the spotlight by smashing off successive gains of 6, 18 and 2 yards, then taking over from the 7 and on four plays ending with just about the whole team on top of him and still a mere half-yard to go.

Oil City was forced to punt from behind their own goal line, but the driving locals split their lines open and blocked Hall's kick boarding up their first count by the safety route at 2 to 0.

The Oilers still had the local powerhouse to contend with after the short count was put in their favor and the Dragons came right back at them, with nothing but a touchdown in mind, as the Oiler kickoff was taken by Carlson on the Oiler 35 up to the 40. Arrigo gained two through left tackle. Snyder tried a gap in left guard and found 7 more to the enemy 26 and Gerald Vesling took over the first down on the 23.

Carlson and Vesling on two plays were stopped for the first time on the ground and only could take up one yard of slack through the Oiler line, but Gusti Arrigo, calling his shots perfectly all afternoon, uncorked his pitching arm on the third down and lifted one to Charley McLean on the 12 and he galloped to the 5 before he was grounded, where Snyder and Vesling took over with plunges to the 1 yard line, but the Oil City eleven was granted respite when the quarter ended.

Jim Snyder was picked for the honors on the first play and found room in the guard slot for the next yard with Warren's first six-pointer going on the boards. Gerald Vesling hit center for the extra point, making it 9 to 0.

Never once driving into Warren territory more than a yard in the first half, Oil City was stopped both on the ground and in the air, being forced to kick repeatedly to keep the Dragons out of their leased dirt.

Bobby Hall of Oil City, after joining with Diehl and Weaver to pick up their two first downs of the half, kicked deep into Dragon-land in the final minutes of that session, but Gerald Vesling came right back at them with a surprise quick-kick on third down, that caught the Oilers off guard and sailed from Warren's 18 to the 12 before being downed by Warren.

Phillies Hand Pirates Double Dragons Go To Jamestown Defeat As Dodgers Take Third Money In National League Friday Night

BY TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unlike a year ago when the St. Louis Cardinals didn't clinch the National League pennant until the last day of the season, the finale of the 1943 baseball season yesterday decided only third place in both major leagues.

Although beaten by Cincinnati, 6 to 1, the Brooklyn Dodgers took third money in the senior league when the Phillies, idle for three days, up and dealt the fourth place Pittsburgh Pirates a double defeat, 3 to 1 and 11 to 3.

Cleveland nosed out the fast closing Chicago White Sox for third in the American League by beating the Philadelphia Athletics, 8 to 4, in 11 innings. The White Sox walloped the Boston Red Sox twice, 4 to 2 and 3 to 1, for their 15th victory in 18 games, but finished a game behind the Indians. The championship St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees finished their tuneups for the World Series by again beating the Giants, 5 to 4, and the Browns, 5 to 2. This gave the Cards 105 victories for the season, only one less than last year, and marked the first time in 30 years a National League champion has repeated with more than 100 triumphs.

The Yankees wound up with 98 victories, the lowest for the eight American League clubs Joe McCarthy has piloted to a pennant.

Dizzy Trout, of Detroit, pitched the Tigers to a 4 to 1 victory over Washington and joined Mort Cooper of the Cards, Spud Chandler, of the Yanks; Elmer Riddle, of the Reds; and Rip Sewell, of the Pirates, as the only 20-game winning pitchers for the season.

The Chicago Cubs and the Boston Braves divided a twin bill, the Cubs winning the opener, 7 to 0, on Bithorn's four-hit pitching and the Braves the nightcap, 5 to 2, behind Rookie John Dagenhard.

Friday night of this week the Dragons will play their game of games when the traditional meeting between Warren and Jamestown, takes place at Jamestown. Tickets are on sale here at the present time for the game and it is expected that there will be a large number of rooters accompanying the team to the hilltop.

Two sections of seats C and B have been reserved in the stands for the Warren contingent. Students tickets are on sale for 30 cents; adults at 50 cents and reserved seats will be 30 cents additional.

The Dragon Band will accompany the team and will engage in a battle of music with the Jamestown Band between the halves.

Cheered by their victory over the Oil City team last Saturday the Blue and White will be rarin' to go at Jamestown and a real game is anticipated. Jamestown has a good record for this season and the locals will have to extend themselves.

Hotel Accommodations And Series Tickets Are Sold Out For Gotham Baseball Classic

By SID FEDER

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A few thousand more "fish" jammed themselves into Pa. Knickerbocker's sardine can today and everything was about ready for the World Series—except how to get tickets, where to sleep and what was cooking with Mort Cooper's ailing arm.

The village was really hopping and popping for aris return bout between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals starting tomorrow at the stadium. And with the Yanks installed as 7 to 10 favorites to win back the world championship the St. Louis swiftness took from them last year, the big question was whether Mort and his mysterious sore arm or Lefty Max Lanier and his fork-side flipper would tangle with Spud Chandler on opening day, provided Spud got Marse Joe McCarthy's expected call.

It was New Year's Eve on every street and hotel, night clubs and restaurants were hitting nothing but jaxpots as indications were the first three games, all in New York, may be the fanciest financial fuses in series history. As a matter of fact, it was lucky the Cards had hotel reservations for their arrival late this afternoon, because they'd hardly like the benches in Central Park. Those were about the only accommodations left.

There was more than an outside chance the Stadium cash registers would play their first sellout tune for a fall classic. Gus Fan and the missus and some 70,000 of their relatives would turn out for the opening, thereby wiping out the 69,902 single-game attendance record which these same two outfits drew for their Sunday game a year ago.

MBS All Set For Broadcast Of The Series

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The MBS station lineup, augmented by some temporary additions, is all set for the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees tomorrow afternoon as they start the World Series. The broadcast opens from New York at 1:15, fifteen minutes ahead of game time. When the teams move to St. Louis the broadcast will be at 2:15.

This is the fifth consecutive year for the MBS exclusive transmission with a sponsor and it will find Red Barber and Lieut. Bob Elson back as co-announcers. Elson, in the navy since last year's series is doing the broadcast on his regular leave. He is to receive no compensation other than traveling expenses. Bill Corum will handle the other details.

Short waving of the series for the benefit of overseas service men is to be made up primarily of after-the-game summaries and condensed recollections for relay the next day. Scores also are to be carried in the various short wave news spots.

Allied forces to relieve the dangers of famine and epidemics. But the weather did not prevent Allied air forces from going out to impede the German retreat, and American Marauder bombers attacked Castelvolturno at the mouth of the Volturno on the north side of the stream and blasted roads east of that point without encountering either enemy fighters or anti-aircraft fire.

For the first time Marshal Albert Kesselring sent up his fighters to attempt to beat off Allied bombing attacks on his communication lines farther north, particularly in the Isernia area, 55 miles north of Naples.

Despite the efforts of eight to ten fighters, American Mitchells destroyed the high bridge north-east of Isernia, wrecked an important road intersection and shot down four of the enemy aircraft.

Two waves of American Marauders also knocked out the Capua road bridge across the Volturno after much movement of enemy troops and supplies had been seen going across it.

Once a railway artery, the bridge had been converted to highway traffic when the rail service was knocked out.

READING & WRITING
BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin McKinn

IT'S not only soldiers who have exciting stories to tell of this war. One of the most thrilling books we've come across for some time is "Paris-Underground," a Book-of-the-Month Club selection for October. "Paris-Underground" is the true story of an American woman in her middle sixties, Mrs. Etta Shiber, who helped many a British soldier to escape from Nazi-occupied France at the risk of her own life.

Mrs. Shiber happened to be living in Paris at the time of the French armistice. And she just happened to become involved in the whole underground movement in France.

In June 1940 Mrs. Shiber and the Englishwoman with whom she lived, Kitty, tried to drive their car along the refugee-cluttered roads south from Paris. A German officer ordered them to return.

On their way back they stopped at an inn for a cup of tea. The innkeeper confided to them that he needed help. A British pilot was hiding there and he dared not keep him longer, for the Germans might search the inn at any moment. Impulsively, the two women volunteered to hide the boy in the luggage compartment of their car.

PUT KITCHEN FATS TO WORK

With fats and oils rationed, America's housewives have a valuable source of cooking fats in meat drippings, fat trimmings from uncooked meat, cured pork rinds, and fat skimmings from soups and stews. They can be saved and used for baking, frying, and seasoning.

HOW TO RENDER FAT

1. Trim excess fat from all uncooked meat and keep in refrigerator until ready to render.
2. Chop fine or grind.
3. Render in double boiler.
4. Strain through cloth.
5. Cool to room temperature.
6. Cover tightly and store in refrigerator. (May be mixed with other rendered fat or drippings which have been strained.)
7. Use for baking, frying, and seasoning.

Use of these fats is vital to the government's fat conservation program. If all cannot be used in the kitchen, the surplus and waste fat should be sold to a retail meat dealer as fats are a valuable source of glycerin used to manufacture ammunition. One pound furnishes enough glycerin to fire four 37-millimeter anti-aircraft shells.

Kitchen fat can be valuable in the war effort. Save it! Use it!

TYPICAL RECIPES USING SALVAGED KITCHEN FATS

PIE CRUST 2 cups flour 1/2 cup drippings or rendered fat Sift flour, measure, add salt and sift again. Cut in cold fat until particles are about size of peas. Add cold water, little at a time, mixing quickly and evenly through flour with a fork until dough just holds in a ball. Use as little water as possible. Chill before rolling. This makes enough pastry for a two-crust 9-inch pie. Roll the dough to about one-eighth inch in thickness.	BAKING POWDER BISCUITS 3 cups flour 4 1/2 teaspoons baking powder 1 teaspoon salt Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut in cold fat. Add the milk all at one time. Stir with a fork until the dough clings in a ball. Turn on a lightly floured surface and knead gently for one-half minute. Pat or roll one-half inch thick and cut with a small biscuit cutter, dipped in flour. Place on baking sheet and bake in a hot oven (450° F.) for 12 to 15 minutes.
JEFFY CAKE 4 tablespoons rendered fat or drippings 1 cup sugar 1 egg 1/2 cup milk Put all ingredients in a bowl and beat well with a rotary beater. Batter should be light and smooth. Pour into deep layer pan and cover evenly with the following mixture: 1/2 cup grated sweet chocolate or coconut and 1/2 cup finely chopped nuts. Bake in a slow oven (350° F.) for 35 to 40 minutes.	CRACKLING CORN BREAD 2 cups corn meal 1/2 cup sifted flour 3 teaspoons baking powder 2 cups milk 2 teaspoons salt 1 egg, beaten 2 cups milk 1 cup cracklings Chop cracklings (the crisp brown pieces left after fat is rendered) or put through food grinder. Sift together dry ingredients, add milk to which beaten egg has been added, and mix well. Stir in cracklings. Pour mixture into greased pan and bake in hot oven (425° F.) 30 to 40 minutes, or until well browned.
GINGER COOKIES 5 cups flour 1 tablespoon soda 1 tablespoon ginger 1 cup rendered fat or drippings Sift flour once, measure and sift again with soda, salt and ginger. Cream fat, add sugar and continue creaming. Add beaten eggs, vinegar and molasses. Add dry ingredients and mix. Roll in balls the size of a walnut. Place on a cookie sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven (400° F.) for twelve to fifteen minutes. Yield: 5 dozen.

forced to kick, and this time Hall got off a bad one that only traveled 9 yards, giving the locals the break they'd been waiting for. Gusto Arrigo took through left tackle on the first play for 15 yards to the 24, then tried two passes before finding Adams, who made a beautiful catch on the 10. A penalty moved the locals back to the 15, for backfield in motion, but they still couldn't be stopped and Arrigo flipped an aerial to Chuck Adams who stepped along the sidelines for another tally, crossing standing up, and Vesling added still another, with his plunge, making it 16 to 0.

Then, with only two minutes of play left, Mack Sirriani, playing a stellar game at center took over just like his teammates in the backfield had been doing, intercepting a Bobby Hall pass on the 40 and getting off a neat piece of broken field running to the Oiler 16. Byron Tome, the left-handed carrot top of the locals, snipped a bull pass to Virg Greene on the very next play for the touchdown but the latter's try on the extra point plunge failed making it 22 to 0, and the locals had scored twice in the final three minutes of play.

Neither team crossed the oil stripe in the third quarter, but Oiler City managed to invade 5 yards into the local territory finishing there at the quarter's end and taking from there for their only counter.

Diehl, Ziegler and Hall took over running honors and Hall tossed the passes as they worked from the local 45 to the 22 and added 4 first downs before Bobby Hall again pulled one of his sensational runs of former weeks and evaded the entire Dragon second squad to cross the goal line, making it 22 to 6.

Late in the fourth stanza the Dragons scored again going from the Oiler 40 yard stripe to pay dirt on 5 plays as the varsity came back in in full force. After Snyder had smashed through for 22 yards to the 13, he joined forces with Vesling to move to a first down on the 3, and Gusto Arrigo, with barely a minute to play, plunged for the final score and the Dragons carried him off the field at the final whistle with a 29 to 6 victory in his final game before entering the navy Monday.

The Dragons were functioning perfectly for their third win and except for occasional faulty blocking are turning into a fast scoring

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

Serve Star Bacon and Baked Sweet Potatoes!

Bacon's always been a breakfast favorite... but did you know it's a grand meat for dinners, too? For instance, you can make a delicious feast with Bacon and Baked Sweet Potatoes! It's a big hearty meat meal for only 1 point a serving! You allow 2 or 3 strips of Star Bacon for each serving, which figures about 1/2 pound to 4 persons. We suggest you use Armour's Star Bacon because it's sugar cured in its own juices... slow smoked over fragrant hickory and hardwood fires. This gives Star Bacon a rich, mild flavor... and spreads the meat-goodness in any Star Bacon dish you make. Bake sweet potatoes in a 350° F. oven 1 hour or until tender. Cut a slice from top of each, scoop out contents, leaving skin whole. Mash the potatoes and season as usual. Refill skins with mashed potatoes and top each with a half marshmallow. EIGHTH ARMY MAKES NEW LANDING IN ITALY

American Troops Driving Forward In March on Rome

Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army Surges on From Benevento Capturing Important Crossings on the Calore River

MONTGOMERY ADVANCING UP ADRIATIC COAST

By NOLAN NORGAARD

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 4.—(P)—The British Eighth Army, with the support of Allied naval forces which penetrated the Adriatic, have landed and clinched positions at Termoli, on the Adriatic coast almost midway between the Italian heel and the mouth of the river Po in northern Italy, official frontline dispatches announced today.

Simultaneously, United States troops of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army have surged forward from Benevento in their march on Rome from Naples and have captured an important crossing of the Calore river, thereby threatening to turn the flank of any water defense line which the Germans may attempt to hold along the Volturno river.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's advance up the Adriatic coast—along the historic path of conquerors toward the Emilian Way, which leads to the Po valley—likewise threatened to turn the defenses of German Marshals Rommel and Kesselring which may be centered about Rome and the Apennines.

His march was advanced greatly by the leapfrog tactics of unopposed landing forces which seized Termoli by surprise, beat off German counter-attacks, took an undisclosed number of prisoners well behind the enemy's rear and then made a junction with the main body of the Eighth Army, which continued to pound up the coast.

Termoli is 50 miles north of Foggia, the airbase city, and approximately 17 miles north of Gen. Montgomery's previous position at the mouth of the Fortore river just north of the "spur" of the Italian boot.

Immediately north of Naples, Fifth Army patrols with strong British armor support, stabbed relentlessly at the retreating Germans and found enemy resistance stiffening, apparently because the Germans were intent upon slowing down Clark's advance long enough to withdraw heavy equipment and supplies across the Volturno.

The Fifth Army's march also was impeded greatly by German demolition parties which were blowing up every bridge, road junction and culvert.

With the Americans across the Calore river and in a position to strike westward in force, the Germans appeared able only to fight a delaying action along the Volturno once Clark's main body reaches that stream.

While Montgomery's amphibious undertaking, a repetition of the tactics that permitted rapid advances along both Sicilian coasts, made spectacular gains, other Eighth Army forces pushed to the northwestern edge of the Foggia plain and occupied the town of Motta, 28 miles northwest of Foggia, a communiqué announced. The communiqué did not say when the town was taken.

The communiqué also announced the occupation of Montemiletto, 11 miles southeast of Benevento, on the flank of the American column which reached and crossed the Calore.

Other towns and villages taken within the Allied line stretching across Italy included Castelfranco, 20 miles northeast on Benevento; Ginestra, also northeast of Benevento; Moncalvo, 16 miles east of Benevento; Mirabella, Melito and Bonito, all east and southeast of Benevento; and Lapis, Altavilla and Arpina, south of Benevento. In the inland march to the west from the Foggia plain the Eighth Army also occupied Roseto, Volturno and Alberona, all south of Motta, and Pietra and Montecorvino, northeast of Motta.

Rain still falling in the Naples area yesterday impeded Clark's drive beyond the city where essential services and food supplies were being organized quickly by (Turn to Page Seven)

Vice Tightens About Enemy On Peninsula

Enemy's Position, MacArthur Says, Is Futile If Not Untenable

SHORELINE IS MENACED

By C. YATES McDANIEL

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Oct. 4.—(P)—Their last important coastal supply base gone and their land flank beset by a column of Australian troops, the Japanese on New Guinea's Huon Peninsula today were squeezed between the mountains and the sea.

The enemy's position, General Douglas MacArthur said in a communiqué, was futile if not untenable, and the Allies had every reason to believe the entire northeastern New Guinea shoreline as far as Madang was within grasp.

Finschhafen, the major enemy anchorage and air station on the eastern coast of the Huon Peninsula, fell Saturday to Australia's famed Ninth Division, battle-hardened veterans of Tobruk and El Alamein.

In itself assured the Allied final control of the Huon gulf, on which Lae and Salamaua are situated.

But through a simultaneous air and ground advance, pressed persistently up the Markham river from Lae and over the mountains of interior New Guinea to the Ramu river valley on the north-west, the Allies have achieved dominance of the entire peninsula as well.

Enlarging on his commander's statement, Brig. Gen. Charles Willoughby, MacArthur's chief of intelligence, suggested the future reward for operations of this type is limited only by the forces available to execute them.

The northeastern New Guinea campaign, he asserted, "provides the answer to the mechanics of combined operations for the next six to 12 months if we are given the means to carry them out."

Willoughby declined to say whether new Allied undertakings, large scale or small, are in prospect, he declared, however: "We will not stand still."

Majority of Senators Favor Colaboration After the War

By JACK BELL

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—A majority of the senate favors international collaboration after the war, but there are so many different viewpoints that any foreign policy declaration now almost certainly would have to be vague and general in its commitments.

That was the interpretation placed by veteran observers today on the results of an Associated Press poll in which 89 senators were asked if they would support the house-approved Fulbright peace resolution if it came to a vote in its present form.

Of the 89, a total of 42 said they favor the principle of the measure, which would record congress

East Liverpool, O., Oct. 4.—(P)—The trip of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schenholm, of Bradford, Pa., down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans and thence to Sarasota, Fla., was resumed yesterday after a weekend stop here for repairs to their 32-foot cabin boat. Generator trouble forced docking of their craft. The Schenholms are making the trip to visit a son in the air force.

Women Over 45 Sought For Positions In War Industries

Further Intensified Recruiting Necessary To Utilize Workers

DRAFT IS CONSIDERED

By JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—Most women over 45 years of age are not in the labor market and do not play as aggressive a role in searching for jobs as do younger women.

The census bureau points out, too, that home responsibilities for women are often lighter after 45.

When the word unemployment is used now, it does not mean some group of idle people steadily without jobs. It means only that a certain number of people at a certain time are without jobs.

Yet the unemployment figure may remain fairly constant and in this way, say the number of unemployed in a given month was one million also one million the next month.

That doesn't mean the same one million persons remained unemployed during the period.

For in that period maybe 500,000 persons from the first month's million had found jobs and moved out of the unemployed ranks, while another 500,000 persons lost jobs and moved into the unemployed ranks.

Right now less than half the people seeking work one month are unemployed the next month. But the unemployment of that small residue group, with industry crying for workers, is important.

The figures, as a basis for father-of-deferment, were challenged by another military committee member, Senator Hill (Ala.), the Democratic whip.

Hill said he doubted the accuracy of the 3,500,000-man figure but expressed the belief that even if it were correct, a great number (Turn to Page Seven)

Sen. Johnson Fights Father Draft Proposal

Over 3,500,000 Men In Army With Year's Experience He Declares

FIGURES ARE DISPUTED

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) said today he had received "authentic" figures indicating that there are more than 3,500,000 men in the army with more than a year's service and that there is sufficient untrained manpower to preclude the necessity of a father-draft.

Johnson, a supporter of the move to delay the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, said that of this total figure, 800,000 men have had two years' service, 300,000 have had three years' service and 100,000 more than three years' service.

The Coloradoan, a member of the senate military committee, asserted that there are enough trained men in the United States and overseas to take care of all the needs of the army this year and next.

He said he had demanded the figures from the War Department but received no reply. He then obtained them from another source, Johnson added.

The figures, as a basis for father-of-deferment, were challenged by another military committee member, Senator Hill (Ala.), the Democratic whip.

Hill said he doubted the accuracy of the 3,500,000-man figure but expressed the belief that even if it were correct, a great number (Turn to Page Seven)

Court Martial To Be Held After War

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—Court martial trial of Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Major General Walter C. Short, navy and army commanders in Hawaii at the time of the Pearl Harbor attack, probably will not be held until after the war.

Both officers have waived any technical objections to delaying the proceedings beyond the two year period covered by the statute of limitations.

A joint army-navy statement said that "it has been decided to postpone proceedings against these officers until such time in the future as may be decided upon as being appropriate."

Kimmel and Short were relieved of their commands within a fortnight after the Japanese struck.

FRANKFURT IS VISITED BY FORTRESSES

Americans Supported By Long-Range Thunderbolts, Sweep Into Germany Attacking Many Targets

MINES ARE ALSO LAID

London, Oct. 4.—(P)—American Flying Fortresses, supported by long-range Thunderbolts, swept into Germany today and attacked targets in Frankfurt, which is 91 miles southwest of Kassel where RAF heavy bombers struck last night, it was announced today.

The air ministry also said that British Mosquitos bombed Hannover and targets in the Rhineland last night. Other bombers laid mines in enemy waters.

A British communiqué described the Kassel attack as "very heavy" and said preliminary reports indicated "that heavy damage was done to the important industrial target." The weather was described as excellent.

The RAF's night operations, including the Kassel raid, cost 24 bombers.

Frankfurt, with a population of more than half a million, is a big inland port on the main river, a railway center, and the site of large oil refineries, chemical plants, and other factories.

It was the 37th raid of the war on that city. It has been untouched by air assault, however, since last December.

Today's daylight raid by the big American bombers on their long-range escorts was the first precision attack on the war on Frankfurt.

The twin blows followed the now-familiar Allied strategy of (Turn to Page Seven)

FOUR KILLED IN AIR TRAGEDY AT MEADVILLE

Meadville, Oct. 4.—(P)—Two instructors and two students from Allegheny College were killed today when their two planes collided, crashed and burned about a mile and a half east of Meadville.

Witnesses said the two ships met head-on about 1,000 feet in the air. One of the occupants jumped out, but his parachute failed to open. The bodies of the other three were burned badly.

Names of the victims were not immediately released by army authorities.

Defense Rests In Waynesburg Trial

Waynesburg, Oct. 4.—(P)—The defense rested today shortly after Mrs. Nancy Jeannette Holt, on trial charged with the poison murder of her husband, Jesse, broke into sobs and cried while describing the deathbed scene.

The 29-year-old blonde widow told of taking Holt to work on the "Big Inch" pipeline on the morning of May 27 and of his returning about 11 a. m., saying he had a "chill" on the job.

She said she saw him come from the bathroom with a glass, explaining he had taken a powder. A few minutes later she said he told her "well, Jeannie, I've put in my last day for the Williams Brothers," contractors building the pipeline.

"I asked him if there had been any trouble on the line and he said Jeannette I've just done a terrible thing—may God help me!"

Counterfeiter Of Rationing Cards Sought

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—(P)—Federal agents spread a dragnet today for the operator of a Philadelphia printing plant, following a raid in which counterfeit gasoline ration coupons worth more than 10,000,000 gallons were seized.

A tip from a gasoline dealer, approached as a possible customer, and subsequent detective work led U. S. marshals and Office of Price Administration agents to the two-room headquarters of the Hill Printing Service yesterday.

There, Myron M. Coffey, chief OPA investigator said, they found stacks of counterfeit coupons of all types, along with plates and dies and two presses, one nearly new. Coffey estimated that the plant could have turned out coupons worth 100,000,000 gallons of gasoline in its four months of existence.

A warrant charging illegal manufacture, possession and transfer of federal ration currency was sworn out for Dennis A. Hill, 39, identified by Coffey as the owner (Turn to Page Two)

$10,600,000,000 In Added Taxes Is Morgenthau Plan To Curb Inflation and Win War

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—Secretary Morgenthau asked congress today to provide an additional $10,500,000,000 a year in wartime taxes, taking $6,500,000,000 of this huge sum from individual incomes.

Repeal of the victory tax, which Morgenthau said would "relieve 9,000,000 hard-pressed families from tax on their incomes," was included in an administration program which embraced also big increases in corporation and excise taxes.

With President Roosevelt's approval, the treasury secretary presented to the house ways and means committee the tax plan designed to boost annual federal revenues to nearly $50,000,000,000—approximately one-third the national income.

Morgenthau said income payments to individuals in the current fiscal year were estimated at $152,000,000,000, with only about $89,000,000,000 worth of goods and services available. Of the remaining $63,000,000,000 he said personal taxes would take $21,000,000,000 at present rates, leaving about $42,000,000,000 of "excess spending money."

A large portion of any new revenues probably will come from added levies on "luxuries."

The administration, as explained to members of the house ways and means and senate finance committees, wants the excise on liquor raised from $6 to $10 a gallon. One lawmaker estimated the $10 figure would mean one the basis of 80 drinks to a gallon—that one jigger would carry a tax of 12½ cents.

The members outlined the tentative administration programs as follows:

Individual incomes—A jump in rates to produce an additional $6,610,000,000 annually, which might mean an increase in the withholding levy on taxable portions of wages and salaries, from 20 to 30 per cent for some income groups. However, a portion of the increase would embody a compulsory savings plan under which $3,560,000,000 of the $6,610,000,000 would be refunded to individual taxpayers after the war.

Exemptions from married man, in the tax computations, would be lowered from $1,200 to $1,100; for single persons it would remain at $500, and dependents' exemptions would be reduced from $550 to $300. The victory tax would be absorbed in the income tax increases.

Corporation incomes—A rate jump from 40 to 50 per cent.

Excises: Distilled spirits—From $6 to $10 a gallon; Beer—$7 to $10 a barrel; (Turn to Page Seven)

Planes Play Vital Role In Invasions

Seattle, Oct. 4.—(P)—Every plane the Allies could get off the Mediterranean soil was thrown into the invasion of Italy, and yet it very nearly wasn't enough, says Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the U. S. Army Air Forces.

The invasion would not have been possible with fewer planes, he said last night, "as a matter of fact, we had to gather these planes together from every source possible—from our training centers, from depots, from modification centers—to do the trick."

"The task would have been easier with more planes; it could not have been done with less."

General Arnold credited the U. S. and British air forces for saving Allied troops from annihilation at the Salerno bridgehead in Italy in calling last night for greater and greater bomber production.

Facts Regarding United War Fund Drive To Be Publicized

"How can I find out briefly the facts regarding the Warren County United War Fund campaign?" This is the question being asked by many Warren men, heads of stores and factories, executives, and working men. What they want, as this tremendous drive gathers momentum, is a brief bolled-down statement of the purpose of the campaign, the amount to be raised, the distribution of the funds, and an idea of the proper amount for each individual to give. To such questions as these an answer may be found, according to Edward W. Johnson, chairman of the campaign, in a radio broadcast Tuesday evening, October 5, at 10:36 p. m., EST. Mr. Johnson suggests that Warren

Pittsburgh, Oct. 4.—(P)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., wired his personal congratulations yesterday to Robert H. McClintic, vice chairman of the War Finance Committee and Third War Loan campaign chairman in the Fort Pitt area, for the state's record in passing its war bond sales quota.

Pennsylvania has done a splendid job in going over the top by $28,000,000 in the Third War Loan drive, and I wish to extend to you and your associates heartfelt congratulations for this outstanding accomplishment," Morgenthau telegraphed.

Final tally of the 19-county Fort Pitt area returns will be completed late today, McClintic said. The latest figures showed it topped its $205,808,900 quota by $28,407,100.

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau said today every state in the union apparently oversubscribed its quota in the $15,000,000,000 Third War Loan just closed.

Individual purchases, primary goal of the drive, exceeded the ceiling set for them, he said. The war loan total today stood close to $17,000,000,000.

BIRTH RECALLS CASE AGAINST PANTOMINIST

Hollywood, Oct. 4.—(P)—"Doing splendidly" was the hospital report today concerning Joan Berry, 24, and the baby daughter whose father she alleges to be Film Comedian Charles Chaplin.

The 6-pound 5-ounce infant, named Carol Ann, was born at 10:30 p. m., Saturday.

The child is being kept in a small private nursery, with the key entrusted to one nurse on each shift, at the request of the mother's attorney, John J. Irvin.

The baby's fingerprints were impressed on several legal documents soon after birth. Four months from now blood tests will be made in an attempt to establish whether the 54-year-old English pantomimist is the father.

GERMANS ARE FLEEING OVER KERCH STRAIT

Nazis Threatened With Loss of Last Tenuous Foothold In Caucasus as Reds Drive Them Onto Peninsula

TROOPSHIPS ARE SUNK

London, Oct. 4.—(P)—German troops were threatened with the loss of their last tenuous foothold in the Caucasus today as the Red Army drove them back from Staro-Tamanskaya on the Taman peninsula, while on the upper Dnieper river the Nazis fought furiously to block a Russian flanking movement aimed at Mogilev.

The announcement of the fall of Staro-Tamanskaya was made by the Berlin radio, and the full extent of the German collapse in the Caucasus was indicated in a Russian communiqué last night which told of the sinking of a number of troop-laden ships which apparently were attempting to evacuate the remnants of the shattered German army across the narrow Kerch Strait to the Crimea.

On the central front, Moscow said, more than 2,000 Nazis were killed as the Russians stormed across the Proryva river, 28 miles east of Mogilev, to occupy 70 villages in a maneuver which threatened to turn the German flank in that sector.

The Soviet ground forces were supported by Red army airmen, who pounded both Mogilev and Orsk, an important junction town 50 miles to the north.

South of Mogilev the Russian columns advancing on Gomel found their assaults slowed up by the Germans, who launched numerous counter attacks all of which the Russian communiqué said were repulsed with German losses of more than 1,200. The Russians advanced from 3 to 5 miles and captured 29 villages.

The Russians were apparently (Turn to Page Seven)

Vital Questions Awaiting Decision

Washington, Oct. 4.—(P)—The supreme court reassembles for its 1943-44 term today with legal controversies of far-reaching import awaiting settlement.

The eight-month session is expected to produce rulings on the application of the draft act to conscientious objectors, the constitutionality of OPA rent control regulations, and the right of a Negro to vote in a state primary which nominates candidates for congress.

These controversies are among the 400 cases already on file, and more are arriving daily. Those now pending accumulated during the summer recess that began last June 21.

The court's personnel is the same as it has been since last Feb. 15, when Wiley Rutledge succeeded Justice James F. Byrnes, who resigned in October to become economic stabilization director.

The program for today's session consists only of the admission of attorneys and the receipt of motions. The customary call at the White House will be made later.

A. F. of L. Opens Annual Convention

Boston, Oct. 4.—(P)—The American Federation of Labor opens its 63rd annual convention today with major attention likely to be divided among such items as the application of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers for restoration of its charter, the manpower problem, post-war planning, politics, prices and wages.

Between 500 and 600 delegates were on hand to hear the keynote address of President William Green and, later in the day, a speech by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

TWO covers reaching this country by way of China from Japanese-occupied Thailand are franked with three stamps obviously issued under Japanese rule. Mailed from Trang, Thailand, the covers are postmarked with the numerals "34," which is the Thailand equivalent for 1943.

All of the same design, the stamps have four heads, apparently those of a soldier, a sailor, an aviator and a marine as the central design. Values, as nearly as can be determined from a comparison with known Thailand issues, are: 4 satangs blue; 5 satangs purple, and 10 satangs light green.

The blue and white flag of Greece appears as the central design of the next United States five cent stamp in the over-run countries series, which the Post Office Department has announced will be first placed on sale October 12 at Washington. First day covers may be secured by sending a maximum of 10 addressed envelopes to the Postmaster, Washington, with cash or money orders to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

Brazil has reproduced its famous "bull's eye" design in its new issue of four stamps commemorating the 100th anniversary of the first Brazilian postage stamp. The new issues include: 30 centavos, 60c and 90c. In addition, a souvenir sheet composed of the first three values and pictures of Emperor Dom Pedro II, Brazilian ruler in 1843, and President Vargas, present chief executive of the South American republic. According to information reaching this country, collectors were limited to one sheet each and stamp dealers to 10 sheets.

Sweden paid tribute to its Swedish Voluntary Rifle Organization on its recent 50th anniversary by issuing two stamps, a 10-ore violet and a 90-ore blue, with the organization's insignia of a wreath, arrow and triple crown. The organization is said to have about 300,000 members.

Coppers Engaged In Chase For Lively Pig Sunday

Everything is grist that comes to the coppers' mill and on Sunday they got a call from the United Refinery to come out there and capture a 20-pound young pig. Nothing daunted, Patrolmen Parks and Gaghan sallied forth to catch the chops on the hoof. They found the pig sheltered from the state breezes beside a fence. Parks, who has had experience with razor backs in Virginia and others of the porcine clan, essayed the capture. With a piece of bread and persuasive manner he approached the piglet. When almost ready to lay hands on it the pig bolted. If it had been a razor back, Parks would have been sliced in two as the pig dashed between his legs. Then followed a wild chase. Employees of the refinery took a hand in it and excitement reigned supreme. Finally the porker was cornered and caught. The pig is now in solitary confinement awaiting identification by its owner who can have it by paying for the feed. Otherwise—well, Thanksgiving is coming and the cops always like to make merry on that date.

Over the weekend the police also assisted a husband in recovering his wife's shoes from off the feet of her sister; rounded up a passel of drunks; hunted for a suitcase that had been stolen; answered a fire alarm and hunted for the person who pulled the alarm box; adjusted a mess of family trouble and did a lot of other chores all of which brought neither fame nor glory.

Physician At Tionesta Takes His Own Life

Tionesta, Oct. 4—Dr. Lester Eugene Simon, aged 75, a Cleveland physician, ended his life about noon Sunday by shooting himself through the head with a .38 calibre revolver. He was alone at the time in the cottage of his son-in-law, Melvin E. Greene, located about a half mile south of town along the river.

The man was sitting in a chair when found not long after the shooting. He was clad in pajamas and a bathrobe, which he wore much of the time when around his own cottage nearby.

Dr. and Mrs. Simon, a granddaughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Greene and daughter gathered at the Simon home for dinner at noon. No one saw Dr. Simon when he left the home to go to the Greene cottage and one of the family went there for him when it was time to serve the dinner.

Sheriff Bruce Haggerty and Deputy Sheriff D. H. Blum were notified and after investigating decided it was a case of suicide and an inquest was not necessary. Dr. Simon left a note stating he was ill and did not care to be a burden on any one. He named a Cleveland undertaker to take care of the body, which he requested should be cremated.

The body was taken to the Haslet funeral home and late this evening will be taken to Cleveland.

Dr. Simon came to this community several years ago and erected the cottage along the river. With his wife, he came to the cottage early in the summer. He made many friends here who were shocked to learn of his tragic death. He spent most of his life in Cleveland and was a member of the staff of the Cleveland City hospital.

SHOPLIFTERS FOUND

Two local women engaged in a piece of dress shopping on Saturday, but they did not bother calling a clerk and neither did they wait to have their packages wrapped. One woman garnered her gown at the Miller Shop, and the other did her shopping at the Metzger-Wright store. Police got on the job and found that the one woman had her gown in a wash tub taking off that new appearance. However, she paid the cost of the gown and escaped a trip to Bill Dirling's jailhouse. The other woman produced the dress she had secured intact and it was returned to the store. After this both will shop in the usual channels.

Death and Destruction Lurk Behind Home Fire Hazards Here In Meet This Week

Gasoline, benzene and naphtha NEVER should be used for home dry cleaning or even kept in the house. A pint of gasoline equals a pound of dynamite in power.

Accumulated rubbish in basements, attics or closets both breeds fire and feeds it. Don't allow rubbish of any kind to pile up in your house.

Blazing embers from one blazing home set fire to the inflammable roof of a neighbor's house. Such roofs are the third largest cause of home fires. When re-roofing is necessary, cover the old roof with a fire-retardant material such as asphalt shingles.

A burned child may not play with fire twice—the first time may cost him his life. Matches should be kept in fire-proof containers beyond the reach of small children. Be sure to use safety matches and take care to see that they are fully extinguished.

Many a home has gone up in flames because a housewife left an electric iron connected while she went off to chat with a neighbor or do an errand. Disconnect electric devices after use.

Fire licks out of furnace flue pipes. Stoves, furnaces, flues and chimneys should be cleaned before the beginning of each heating season. Have them repaired if any defects are discovered.

Thousands of Americans are unwitting arsonists. They are the folk who, through sheer carelessness, caused more homes to be destroyed or severely damaged by fire in 1942 than the nation was able to build. And the tragedy of it is that there were NO NEW REASONS for the 1942 fire loss. Just the same old household fire hazards. The most common of them are pictured above. Scout through your home and see how many are there, threatening your property and the lives of yourself and your family.

Moose Party At Corry Was Successful

Saturday evening the Warren Lodge of Moose staged a dinner-dance in the Hotel Corry for the members of the lodge who reside in Corry and vicinity. The officers of the Warren Lodge attended with other guests. Dinner was served at 7 and following the dinner, Gust Sandstrom presided as toastmaster and introduced the officers of the Warren Lodge and Clare A. Berger, who gave a talk on the Moose order and of the charities and patriotic work done by the order.

Following the program, a three-act floor show was given and this was especially pleasing as the acts had been carefully selected. Dancing was then enjoyed in the ball room of the Hotel and a good orchestra provided the music.

Clarendon Boy In Sicily On Surrender

Mr. and Mrs. Marcy Bednez, 108 Railroad street, Clarendon, have had an interesting letter from their son, Cpl. Edmund J. Bednez, who is somewhere in Sicily and writes of the surrender of Italy. He says in part:

"I just got through eating supper and have a little time before it gets dark to drop you a few lines. We can't do much writing in the evenings because it gets dark early and we are not allowed to have any lights. Today for supper we had some ice cream and it sure was delicious.

"It was a sort of celebration in honor of the Allied victory in the surrender of Italy. The people here are happy about it. They really demonstrated their happiness last night when we rode through Palermo and other towns on our way back to camp from seeing and hearing Al Johnson, who gave a wonderful performance.

"On our way back all streets were lined on both sides with people, from the youngest to the oldest, men and women alike, shouting, cheering and waving frantically to us in their happiness over the surrender of Italy. The women were crying and throwing kisses at us. We didn't know what it was all about until we reached our bivouac area. I never in all my life saw such a demonstration and it was something I shall never forget. It made me feel good to see someone appreciate what we are doing.

"I really feel sorry for some of these people. They actually have nothing. Their clothing is patched over and over and for shoes they wrap anything on their feet. It sure is a pitiful sight in some cases, especially among the older people. No one seems to care about them. Some of them look worse than the skeletons I saw in the catacombs. Thank heavens, we don't have such poverty and squalor in the States. This is what Mussolini did for them.

"We rode through Palermo by way of the water front yesterday and I never saw such utter devastation as was caused by bombings. Building after building is in ruins. The whole city got it but it is worse around the docks. There is no question about the power of the Allies any more."

RACIAL DISCRIMINATION

Twenty-two railroads and 15 labor unions are on trial before the President's new Committee on Fair Employment Practices on charges that they discriminate against Negroes.

The Southern Railroad, operating in the southeast, states the problem clearly and realistically in its reply brief. It has never employed a Negro locomotive engineer because that would have been "bitterly resented" by its clientele.

The fact is as the railroad states. "Such problems," the railroad's joint reply remarks, "cannot be solved overnight by a stroke of the pen." Nor can the railroads, which must earn money in order to survive, be expected to defy the sentiment of the areas in which they operate. The long-run approach must be through education, social evolution, civic reform.

AN EXTRA SHOE STAMP FOR JUNIOR

"Little Eva will not go barefooted in the snow for want of a shoe ration stamp. The OPA points out that getting a special shoe stamp is very simple," says one of our special Washington correspondents. She explains it this way:

You can get the form from your local ration board, by mail if you wish. The applicant must have no more than one pair of shoes in wearable or repairable condition. The shoes requested must be for occupational or general wear, not merely for keeping up appearances. Children who have outgrown their shoes will thus be eligible for shoes for general wear, but not for party shoes. In order for anyone to be eligible for a special shoe stamp, all stamps in possession of anyone in his family group must have been spent.

THE BUTTER PROBLEM

A step toward saving more cream for butter has been made by the War Food Administration in an amended food order. Heavy cream has been getting away, through the practice of adding a stabilizer and putting it on the market under a brand-name. So you won't see any more of those packages of whipped cream.

There has been a good deal of clamor to get WFA to decrease its take of butter for the armed services in order to increase the civilian supply. WFA points out that although it plans to decrease buying for the armed services, this will not create a surplus of butter on the civilian market. The peak season of butter production is over and is now declining sharply. Hence the four-point rise.

PEARL HARBOR TRIALS

Apparently the Articles of War do not follow common law. If Admiral Kimmel and Major-General Short are not "arraigned" by Dec. 7, 1943, they cannot be tried for their alleged failings in connection with the disaster at Pearl Harbor.

But this still does not call for immediate public trial in which war secrets might be spread around and ammunition given to hecklers of the administration. There are at least two other possibilities. One is a trial now, in camera, which would be made public in full after the war. The other, which seems preferable, is to "arraign" the brass hats at once and then recess the trial until it can be held openly.

Washington In Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — You may remember stories about American soldiers teaching German kids to play baseball during days of occupation right after World War I. Here are a couple of stories that show that the dough-boy gets along with the youngsters of occupied territory today just as well as he ever did.

Both these stories, which have just drifted back from Sicily, are about mascots, both called Johnny.

The first one's real name is Giovanni. He's a 12-year-old Sicilian whose mother was killed in an air raid and whose father hasn't been heard from since he went off to the Russian front.

JOHNNY wandered into the bivouac of an armored division medical battalion after that historic end-run to Palermo. At first he just sat on the stubble of a wheat field and sang solemnly to himself. Soon the soldiers began to talk and joke with him and to share their C rations. Johnny moved in as mascot.

Now he goes about with his civilian clothes rounded out with a pair of GI shoes and a GI cap. He wears the medical battalion's Red Cross armband and — most proudly of all — the division's patch sewed to his sweater. His salute is famous and he clicks his heels like the general's snappiest aide.

Johnny's most famous feat was his single-handed capture of a "fox-man" gun to the headquarters of the military commander of the Palermo district. He's a 10-year-old Arab replete with side arms and half-pint regulation uniform.

When this Johnny first reported to headquarters he was wearing an empty pistol holster. The commanding officer gave him a 32 of his own. As he left he retrieved his own gun from a nearby piano, where he had hidden it "so the colonel wouldn't take it away." He trusts his new friends more now.

One of Johnny's duties is to play some ancient American records, which came from heaven knows where, on a decrepit phonograph in the officers' mess.

Hollywood Gossip

HOLLYWOOD — The handsome man in pictures, a chap who once made $2,500 a week and then learned what it was to be hungry, is making a comeback. But he's not the same old Neil Hamilton.

In looks, yes, he's about the same; still handsome, still paunchless and athletic, he says cheerfully that he has just turned 44 and has never been happier in his life. Not only about the comeback, for which David O. Selznick has signed him for seven years, but about the "bigger thing" of which he considers the comeback a part. He'll play in "Since You Went Away."

"It's all a demonstration," he says with fervor, "of the power of prayer."

And this is his story:

NEIL HAMILTON, who got into pictures in 1925 and made a hit in "Beau Geste" soon got to thinking that Neil Hamilton was pretty big stuff. His salary went up and up, he had two houses and a boat and all that money could buy.

"So I forgot about God and became a law unto myself," he says. "I was a great fellow, didn't need help from anywhere."

In 1935 he went to England for two years to make pictures. When he came back, a lot of people remembered him—as a has-been. He finally got a deal for four pictures at $1,750 a week, and then drew another long enforced vacation. After this he was glad to play in a serial, at $350 a week—

Meat Marketing Still Looks Pretty Black To the O. P. A.

MAKE THIS PLEDGE:
I pay no more than top legal prices
I accept no rationed goods
without giving up ration stamps

To create a better understanding of the great importance of consumer and retail compliance with rationing and price ceilings, a nation-wide Home Front Pledge campaign has been launched. Reproduced above is a poster for the drive.

BY JAMES THRASHER
NEA Staff Correspondent
Washington, Oct. 4—The black market in meat is still a flourishing and prosperous business, in case anyone is entertaining optimistic notions to the contrary. And a consensus of authorities in Washington puts the biggest share of blame on the collusion that goes on across the counters of thousands of America's butcher shops. During the past six months the government has taken some effective steps toward black market control. The Department of Agriculture's system of slaughter permits almost wiped out the wasteful and unsanitary practice of "country slaughtering." The Office of Price Administration has improved civilian supplies by setting aside the "set-aside" order which earmarked a percentage of each large packer's produce for government purchase. And though point rationing and dollar-and-cents ceilings, OPA has made ignorance a woefully poor excuse for the black-market patron or operator.

But it doesn't do much good for OPA and Agriculture to throw the book at the black-marketeer if he is able to hide behind the housewife's skirt. And that is about what has happened. OPA enforcement officials have a whole catalogue of willful dodges by which consumers with a meat-at-any-price attitude are supplementing their legal share.

Everybody knows the most common of these practices: There is a grace period after consumers' ration coupons have expired before retailers must turn them in. So many butchers are building up a reserve of unused, expired coupons which are either solicited or given voluntarily by regular customers. Then, when these point-shy old customers want to splurge at a later date, the butcher can slip them a nice steak or roast, ration free.

Besides this familiar dodge, there are other more individual and resourceful methods of getting more than a fair share. One New York woman, for instance, managed to collect a main course by touring the neighborhood delicatessen stores, asking for a roast beef sandwich to take out—"without any bread, please"—and of course, giving up no coupons.

Many consumers today do not care particularly how much money they spend, just so they don't have to give up any points. And there isn't much that OPA can do about it, especially since the agency has to fight this war-born evil while wearing several pairs of handcuffs.

One handicap is the fact that

Congress has forbidden OPA enforcement officers to make purchases for evidence. When an officer receives a tip that a shop is selling rationed meat without collecting points, all he can do is stand around the store with his hands in his pockets, and watch. This makes him about as inconspicuous as a totem pole, and not much more effective.

"If we could make buys," one enforcement official says, "we could increase our efficiency 50 per cent."

There are two more shackles that OPA can't do much about. One is the tremendous consumer demand. The other is the lack of a ceiling price on live beef animals.

But it is no secret that livestock men like this arrangement, and that they are fighting ceilings. And Agriculture, which would have to concur in any livestock ceiling move, isn't opposing them very strongly.

OPA would be considerably happier if it could increase its present staff of 200 covering meat violations. These investigators can get around regularly to the big packers, but it is impossible for them to do much about the country's 195,000 retail meat stores.

In spite of handicaps, however, OPA has managed to make it hot for a lot of price and ration violators. Approximately 1000 packers, wholesalers and retailers have been prosecuted under the second War Power Act, with convictions in more than 300 cases. That doesn't count the growing number of consumers who have had their ration books taken up, for varying periods, after conviction of buying meat without spending coupons.

Investigation isn't easy, because transactions now have an outward appearance of legality. You hear no more stories of truck-riding rustlers or old prohibition mobs in the meatlegging racket. (Most of them weren't true, anyway.) Black-marketing is now slick and sophisticated. Tightening controls have forced out most of the get-rich-quick racketeers. The black market today is largely in the hands of men who have been in

Under the caption "Something New Has Been Added," the Aero-Gram published by the Aero Supply Company in Cory tells of a new service which will be of particular interest to many in this section. It deals with the work of a full-time visiting nurse and welfare worker, May N. Rowland, R. N., of Youngsville, who, in the course of her duties for the company, has had occasion to visit many Warren county homes.

The Aero-Gram article calls attention to the fact that "already her black coupe is becoming a familiar sight as it makes its daily stops throughout the community. Miss Rowland will call on all those not reporting for work, to learn the cause and see if any assistance is needed by the employee to enable them to return to their post on the production front. We know that all Aero employees will be glad to cooperate with Miss Rowland for she is making her calls to be of service and to render assistance and advice where it is needed. We welcome Miss Rowland into the Aero family and hope that she will like us."

"Incidentally, we would suggest that if you report in sick, you had better be sick, for Miss Rowland will certainly appear at your door to see if you are getting all the attention you need. Being a registered nurse, she will be able to distinguish between a morning-sickness and a genuine illness. Needless to say, a word to the wise should be sufficient."

Warren Man Given Praise By Superior

Mrs. George C. Hinton, 20 Elm street, has received the following self-explanatory communication from Captain Woodrow H. Barnes, commanding officer of the 17th Field Artillery overseas:

"I would like to take this opportunity of telling you how much I appreciate the excellent work your son Corporal George F. Hinton, has done since becoming a member of this Battery. He has cheerfully performed whatever task has been assigned him and while at times his duty hours have been long and arduous, he has never complained. I am sincerely proud to have him as a member of this Battery."

"We do everything we possibly can for the boys over here in an effort to keep them well and happy. We try to provide magazines and other reading matter and when the situation permits we the meat business for years, and who know their way around. No violations show on invoices, for everything is on a side-payment basis, strictly cash.

Enforcement officers are grateful for the occasional help of a co-operative retailer or consumer, and they are encouraged by the growing public resentment against black-market patronage.

The agency is hopeful that the pending addition of price panels to existing food ration boards will ease the difficulty. These volunteer helpers could check complaints informally, and weed out cases of misunderstood regulations and minor or inadvertent violations.

But OPA doesn't hesitate to say that butchers and customers alike will have to start showing more good sense and patriotism than they have to date before the black market can be licked.

Chapter 14

BREAKFAST at nine o'clock seemed a long way off when Jane awoke at 7:30. She turned over, determined to go back to sleep. The curtains were blowing in the stiff wind. The pine trees were swaying majestically, their mighty boughs waving to the scudding clouds.

Finally, deciding sleep was not for her, she dressed and went downstairs.

"Good morning," the housekeeper looked startled. "Morning, miss. It's pretty early for you to be up, isn't it?" Jane laughed. "I'm used to it. I even like it."

Jane went into the living room and held a match to the kindling and logs that had been stacked carefully in the fireplace. The tiny flame grew, eating its way higher and higher until it crackled cheerfully up the chimney. Pulling a chair closer, Jane extended her hands to the heartening warmth.

Ella Black came downstairs shortly before nine o'clock, looking fresh as a daisy. No trace at all of last night, either in her eyes or her manner. Nor was there any hint of their quarrel when her husband came down a few minutes later.

Breakfast was a cheerful meal. Aunt Ella chattered like a magpie, playing Jane with questions until the girl began to suspect that something was behind it. Uncle Ed devoted his attention to the morning paper.

He finished the paper, along with his coffee, and folded it neatly beside his plate.

"Jane," he said, speaking to her for the first time since he had called a gay "good morning" from the stairs, "will you come into the library? I want to talk to you."

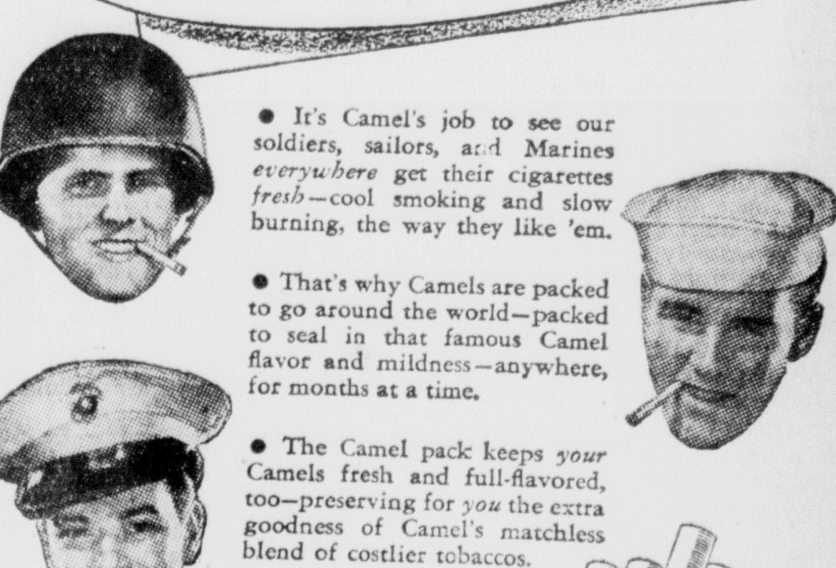

JANE's eyes flew to Aunt Ella, who was shaking her head. She pushed back her chair.

"Ed," Aunt Ella said then, "I don't think you should. It . . . it isn't right."

"Now, Ella," there was something of last night in his tone, "she has got to know."

He got up and stalked into the library. Jane following. Aunt Ella drank the rest of her coffee before she, too, went in.

himself at his desk. For all the world like a judge, she thought. He waited until his wife came in and closed the door.

"Jane," his voice was tender, "I wish I didn't have to tell you, but . . . well, it will be easier if you hear it from me."

He paused. Hear what? Jane wondered. Her uncle was rubbing his jaw thoughtfully, perhaps searching for the proper words.

"Brad Forrester is not a government agent," Jane jumped at the bluntness of his statement. Brad not a Secret Service man? I don't believe it, her heart cried out.

"What is he then?" Her voice sounded harsh to her own ears. Ed Black shrugged. "You guess," he said. "The real agent contacted me last night, Jane. That's why I was called back to the office. He said his credentials were stolen after he had been beaten up and left for dead."

"I don't believe it," Jane said. "Neither did I, at first. But, Jane, Collins has all the proper identification, even a letter of introduction from the head of his department." He shook his head. "It's true, all right, Jane."

Jane's heart felt dead within her. She looked from Uncle Ed to Aunt Ella and back again.

"What are you going to do?" she asked, dreading the answer. "Nothing," Ed Black's words came like a reprieve. "Not a thing—until we find out what he's up to."

Oh, God, Jane prayed, don't let it be true. "Poor dear," Mrs. Black came to her then. "He—Jane, he must be a spy."

Spy. Hearing the word made it worse than ever. Jane turned away. She didn't want them to see the pain in her eyes.

THAT afternoon Jane accompanied her aunt to the church where Chester Billingsley's funeral was to be held. Ed and Brad met them there, having come directly from the Chronicle office.

"You must, child," Aunt Ella had said when she protested. "We can't let him suspect anything."

She was sitting between Brad and her uncle. It was the pressure of Brad's shoulder brushing hers occasionally that kept her mind in a turmoil, she realized, and was angry at herself for the admission.

I hate you, Brad Forrester. How could you pretend as you have? As you are pretending now? For all I know, you killed Chester Billingsley yourself, despite all your talk of being his friend. She bit back a sob.

Uncle Ed was watching her. So was Aunt Ella. But Brad seemed unconscious of her presence. His eyes were glued to the minister's placid face as though he were hanging onto the dried words.

How can you, Brad? Jane felt like screaming.

She stole a glance at Evelyn Billingsley, who was staring at the coffin. Her eyes were dry and feverish, as they had been when she came in, scorning the assistance of her brother who hovered at her elbow. But there was a tautness about her that seemed ready to crack at any moment. Jane felt like taking her into her arms like a hurt child.

Brad glanced down at her then, but she looked straight ahead. She couldn't meet his gaze; he might read the truth in her eyes.

The sermon was over finally and row after row of friends filed to the front of the church to pay their final tribute. Brad stepped aside for Jane to precede him. His hand on her elbow in that moment was almost too much. She kept close to the plump Mrs. Raymond so it wouldn't happen again.

ONE fleeting glance and Chester Billingsley was gone forever from her sight. Jane felt a sob struggling in her throat. She was thankful for the cold December air that met her at the door.

Brad, Uncle Ed and Aunt Ella paused beside her. Between sniffs, Aunt Ella said something about 'the beautiful service.'

Jane nodded. She had no idea what her aunt had said. All her attention was directed at the man leaning against a car. It was Brad, the man who had searched her purse for that letter!

"I'll meet you later," Brad murmured, slipping through the crowd.

Jane felt sick. It was quite likely true, then, what Uncle Ed had said. Brad was meeting Brad. That was proof of his guilt.

Oil City Falls Victim To Warren Dragons 29 to 6

Blue and White Scores 22 Points in First Half In Whitewashing Foe

The Warren Dragons provided a fitting send-off for their star quarterback, Gusti Arrigo, Saturday, by turning the mighty tide of Blue and White from Oil City back 29 to 6, in one of the biggest district upsets of the day.

Not once during the tilt did the Dragons offensive fall back and they repeatedly drove through the Oilers forward wall for a run-up of 12 first downs to their 7, and the enemy racked up 5 of theirs in the last half, mostly against Warren's second stringers.

The locals started their relentless drive when the flipped coin gave them the receiving end. Vessling tested their running attack by kicking from his 45 into Oiler territory on the 35. After three plays with Diehl and Weaver of Oil City lugging to the 41, Diehl's punt was taken by Arrigo on the 12 and raced back to the 21 before getting downed.

The Blue and White charges of J. B. Leidig ripped the Oilers' crew wide open on the next twelve plays, pacing their attack through the 1/2 yard stripe, with Gusti Arrigo, Jim Snyder, Vessling and Carlson sharing the ball totting, and Jim Snyder holding the biggest share of the spotlight by smashing off successive gains of 6, 18 and 2 yards, then taking over from the 7 and on four plays ending with just about the whole team on top of him and still a mere half-yard to go.

The Oilers still had the local powerhouse to contend with after the short count was put up in their favor and the Dragons came right back at them, with nothing but a touchdown in mind, as the Oiler kickoff was taken by Carlson on the Oiler 35 up to the 40, Arrigo gained two through left tackle, Snyder tried a gap in left guard and found 7 more to the enemy 26 and Gerald Vessling took over the first down on the 23.

Carlson and Vessling on two plays were stopped for the first time on the ground and only could take up one yard of slack through the Oiler line, but Gusti Arrigo, calling his shots perfectly all afternoon, uncorked his pitching arm on the third down and lifted one to Charley McLean on the 12 and he galloped to the 5 before he was grounded, where Snyder and Vessling took over with plunges to the 1 yard line, but the Oil City eleven was granted respite when the quarter ended.

Jim Snyder was picked for the honors on the first play and found room in the guard slot for the next yard with Warren's first six-point going on the boards. Gerald Vessling hit center for the extra point, making it 9 to 0.

Never once driving into Warren territory more than a yard in the first half, Oil City was stopped both on the ground and in the air, being forced to kick repeatedly to keep the Dragons out of their leased dirt.

Bobby Hall of Oil City, after joining with Diehl and Weaver to pick up their two first downs of the half, kicked deep into Dragonland in the final minutes of that session, but Gerald Vessling came right back at them with a surprise quick-kick on third down that caught the Oilers off guard and sailed from Warren's 18 to their 12 before being downed by Warren.

Phillies Hand Pirates Double Defeat As Dodgers Take Third Money In National League

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unlike a year ago when the St. Louis Cardinals didn't clinch the National League pennant until the last day of the season, the finale of the 1943 baseball season yesterday decided only third place in both major leagues.

Although beaten by Cincinnati, 6 to 1, the Brooklyn Dodgers took third money in the senior loop when the Phillies, idle for three days, up and dealt the fourth place Pittsburgh Pirates a double defeat, 3 to 1 and 11 to 3.

Cleveland nosed out the fast closing Chicago White Sox for third in the American League by beating the Philadelphia Athletics, 8 to 4, in 11 innings. The White Sox walloped the Boston Red Sox twice, 4 to 2 and 3 to 1, for their fifth victory in 15 games, but finished a game behind the Indians.

The championship St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees

finished their tuneups for the World Series by again beating the Giants, 5 to 4, and the Browns, 5 to 2. This gave the Cards 105 victories for the season, only one less than last year, and marked the first time in 30 years a National League champion has repeated with more than 100 triumphs.

The Yankees wound up with 95 victories, the lowest for the eight American League clubs Joe McCarthy has piloted to a pennant.

Dizzy Trout, of Detroit, pitched the Tigers to a 4 to 1 victory over Washington and joined Mort Cooper of the Cards, Spud Chandler, of the Yanks, Elmer Riddle, of the Reds, and Rip Sewell, of the Pirates, as the only 20-game winning pitchers for the season.

The Chicago Cubs and the Boston Braves divided a twin bill, the Cubs winning the opener, 7 to 0, on Hi Bithorn's four-hit pitching and the Braves the nightcap, 5 to 2, behind Rookie John Dagenhard.

Hotel Accommodations And Series Tickets Are Sold Out For Gotham Baseball Classic

By SID FEDER

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A few thousand more "fish" jammed themselves into Pa Kniekerbocker's sardine can today and everything was about ready for the World Series—except how to get tickets, where to sleep and what was cooking with Mort Cooper's ailing arm.

The village was really hopping and popping for a return bout between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals starting tomorrow at the stadium. And with the Yanks installed as 7 to 10 favorites to win back the world championship the St. Louis swiftness took from them last year, the big question was whether Mort and his mysterious sore arm or Lefty Max Lanier and his fork-side flipper would tangle with Spud Chandler on opening day, provided Spud got Marse Joe McCarthy's expected call.

It was New Year's Eve on every street and hotel, night clubs and restaurants were hitting nothing but jackpots as indications were the first three games, all in New York, may be the fanciest financial fuses in series history. As a matter of fact, it was lucky the Cards had hotel reservations for their arrival late this afternoon, because they'd hardly like the benches in Central Park. Those were about the only accommodations left.

There was more than an outside chance the Stadium cash registers would play their first sellout tune for a fall classic. Gus Fan and the missus and some 70,000 of their relatives would turn out for the opening, thereby wiping out the 69,902 single-game attendance record which these same two outfits drew for their Sunday game a year ago.

RED CROSS TOURNAMENT IS WON BY UNKNOWN

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Five thousand fans contributed some $12,000 to the Red Cross for the privilege of watching the nation's best golf professionals compete at the Torreydale-Frankford Country Club yesterday, but few of them saw the tournament being won.

While most of the gallery followed Byron Nelson, the "golfer of the year," unheralded Dick Renaghan of the Tavistock (N.J.) Country Club set a new course record of 31 for the first nine holes and came home in 37, finishing one stroke ahead of Nelson and Felix Serafin, of Pittston, Pa.

Dragons Go To Jamestown Friday Night

Friday night of this week the Dragons will play their game of games when the traditional meeting between Warren and Jamestown takes place at Jamestown. Tickets are on sale here at the present time for the game and it is expected that there will be a large number of rooters accompanying the team to the hilltop. Two sections of seats C and E have been reserved in the stands for the Warren contingent. Students tickets are on sale for 30 cents; adults at 50 cents and reserved seats will be 30 cents additional.

The Dragon Band will accompany the team and will engage in a battle of music with the Jamestown Band between the halves.

Cheered by their victory over the Oil City team last Saturday the Blue and White will be rarin' to go to Jamestown and a real game is anticipated. Jamestown has a good record for this season and the locals will have to extend themselves.

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

Serve Star Bacon and Baked Sweet Potatoes!

Bacon's always been a breakfast favorite... but did you know it's a grand meat for dinners, too? For instance, you can make a delicious feast with Bacon and Baked Stuffed Sweet Potatoes! It's a big hearty meat meal for only 1 point a serving!

You allow 2 or 3 strips of Star Bacon for each serving, which figures about 1/2 pound to 4 persons. We suggest you use Armour's Star Bacon because it's sugar cured in its own juices... slow smoked over fragrant hickory and hardwood fires. This gives Star Bacon a rich, mild flavor... and spreads the meat-goodness in any Star Bacon dish you make.

Bake sweet potatoes in a 350° F. oven 1 hour or until tender. Cut a slice from top of each, scoop out contents, leaving skin whole. Mash the potatoes and season as usual. Refill skins with mashed potatoes and top each with a half marshmallow. Put in oven long enough to brown marshmallows. Meanwhile fry the bacon slowly... and arrange around potatoes as shown above.

PUT KITCHEN FATS TO WORK

With fats and oils rationed, America's housewives have a valuable source of cooking fats in meat drippings, fat trimmings from uncooked meat, cured pork rinds, and fat skimmings from soups and stews. They can be saved and used for baking, frying, and seasoning.

HOW TO RENDER FAT

1. Trim excess fat from all uncooked meat and keep in refrigerator until ready to render.
2. Chop fine or grind.
3. Render in double boiler.
4. Strain through cloth.
5. Cool to room temperature.
6. Cover tightly and store in refrigerator. (May be mixed with other rendered fat or drippings which have been strained.)
7. Use for baking, frying, and seasoning.

Blue and White Scores 22 Points In First Half In Whitewashing Foo

forced to kick, and this time Hall got off a bad one that only traveled 9 yards, giving the locals the break they'd been waiting for. Gusto Arrigo took through left tackle on the first play for 15 yards to the 24, then tried two passes before finding Adams, who made a beautiful catch on the 10. A penalty moved the locals back to the 15, for backfield in motion, but they still couldn't be stopped and Arrigo flipped an aerial to Chuck Adams who stepped along the sidelines for another tally, crossing standing up, and Vesling added still another, with his plunge, making it 16 to 0.

Then, with only two minutes of play left, Mack Sirriani, playing a stellar game at center took over just like his teammates in the backfield had been doing, intercepting a Bobby Hall pass on the 40 and getting off a neat piece of broken field running to the 16. Byron Tome, the left-handed carrot top of the locals, snipped a bullet pass to Virg Greene on the very next play for the touchdown but the latter's try on the extra point plunge failed making it 22 to 0, and the locals had scored twice in the final three minutes of play.

Neither team crossed the pay stripe in the third quarter, but Oil City managed to invade 5 yards into the local territory finishing there at the quarter's end and taking from there for their only counter.

Diehl, Ziegler and Hall took over running honors and Hall tossed the passes as they worked from the local 45 to the 22 and added 4 first downs before Bobby Hall again pulled one of his sensational runs of former weeks and evaded the entire Dragon second squad to cross the goal line, making it 22 to 6.

Late in the fourth stanza the Dragons scored again going from the Oil City 40 yard stripe to pay the Oil City 5 plays as the varsity came back in in full force. After Snyder had smashed through for 22 yards to the 13, he joined forces with Vesling to move to a first down on the 3, and Gusto Arrigo, with barely a minute to play, plunged for the final score and the Dragons carried him off a field at the final whistle with a 29 to 6 victory in his final game before entering the navy Monday.

The Dragons were functioning perfectly for their third win and except for occasional faulty blocking are turning into a fast scoring aggregation. Wayne "Cowboy" Schmader's work on the line was particularly outstanding, while "Salsboy" Zobrest and with the two Chucks on each end, McLean and Adams, playing faultless ball, they look plenty good going against Jamestown Friday night.
